600,000 Without a Country.

Mr. Shaw as Mr. Finnegan.

To Discourage Aviation.

You Make Hesosephosphate.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

H. R. KNICKERBOCKER, trained newspaper man, writing from Berlin, says:

"Six hundred thousand Jews in Germany today are people without a country. Also, the economic boycott on German Jews, while no longer carried on with physical violence, has deprived 100,000 of a living."

According to Mr. Knickerbocker, all German Jews hope to leave Germany. 3,000 have asked for visas, that they may go to Palestine, and there have been many suicides.

The government now ruling in Germany, if it really intends as Mr. Knickerbocker says, to "root out the Jews," will find eventually that it has rooted out other things, including much of Germany's prosperity, success and intelligence.

Spain and Portugal "rooted out the Jews" long ago. And among nations they have amounted to very little since then.

LADIES OF the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Minnesota will discourage beer by boycotting "drug stores, groceries and restaurants that sell beer." The ladies will, of course, refrain from drinking beer themselves, and not permit it in their households. That is the right of Americans, and with some, lacking self control, it is necessary.

But they might remember the advice of the good French bishop, to whom a young priest wrote that he would stop wine-drinking and dancing by peasants on Sunday. The Bishop replied:

"Do you refrain, and set a good example. But let the poor peasants drink, dance and forget their misery."

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, arriving and going, reminds you of the faithful railroad employe, Mr. Finnegan, who had been told to send only brief telegrams. When a car ran off the track, was replaced and went on its way, Mr. Finnegan wired:

"Off again, on again, gone again, Finnegan."

George Bernard Shaw, on his way around the world with his wife, and on the homestretch toward England, got off the English ship "Empress of Britain" in New York yesterday, made a speech in the Metropolitan Opera House, and went back to sleep on the ship and sailed for home today.

MR. SHAW, whose professional specialty is wit, calls Americans "dear boobs." You will admit that the description is well chosen when you consider that Americans scrapped new battleships and battleships in the building stage to oblige Britain, and lent England and other countries TEN THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS THAT WE ARE NOT GOING TO GET BACK.

TWO AVIATION items: It is suggested that a Navy officer, who is NOT a flier, be made chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics. President Roosevelt will perhaps squelch that suggestion. You wouldn't put in charge of cavalry a man unable to ride a horse, or put a hoptoad in charge of eagles.

MR. VINSON, head of the House Naval Affairs Committee, wants to curtail drastically the pay of all flying officers in the Navy except the lowest paid junior fliers. Any officer paid as much as $2,840 a year would get no additional pay during his flying time.

That BILL TO DISCOURAGE FLYING suggests this question:

How much would the average Congressman expect, as additional compensation, if he had to fly as men do in the Navy, in all kinds of weather, at frightful "hell-diving" speeds, in dangerous close formation?

This country should economize, undoubtedly, but no economy should be made at the expense of national safety.

EVERYBODY MORE than eight years old in the United States knows what makes an automobile go. How many know what makes their own bodies go? Dr. Sacks of the University of Michigan, tells you that under ordinary conditions, our muscles do their work "by burning lactic acid with the oxygen in the blood stream."

In emergencies, when the body needs energy faster than oxygen can be carried to the muscle tissues, the glycogen, which is animal starch stored in the muscles, "undergoes too quick chemical breakdown." One yields lactic acid, the other hesosephosphate, a compound of glycogen and phosphorous.

These two breakdowns give the body the necessary "quick pickup." One of Moliere's characters was amazed to learn that he had been writing prose all his life without knowing it.

You may be amazed to find that you have been producing "hesosephosphate" without knowing it.

EDWARD SCHNEBERGER, of the University of Wisconsin, makes an announcement, one that will mean much to the food supply in future years, when this country will have a population bigger than that of the entire world at present.

"Fertilization of lakes and streams" as proved by experiments made in fish ponds can increase magically the growth of fishes. Living in "fertilized water," a big mouth bass can be grown to a length of eleven inches in one year. Ordinarily

3 MEN GUILTY IN CULT DEATH

INEZ, Ky., April 12.—(AP.)—John H. Mills, Ballard Mills and Blaine McGinnis were convicted in the Mills "human sacrifice" case by a jury here today.

Mrs. Mollie McGinnis and Mrs. Ora Moore were acquitted.

The punishment of John H. Mills was fixed at life imprisonment, and sentences of 21 years each were imposed on Ballard Mills and Blaine McGinnis.

No emotion was shown by the defendants when the verdict was read. The five, all relatives, were charged with the "cult murder" of Mrs. Lucinda Mills, 67-year-old mother of John Mills, slain with chains during a ritualistic orgy in a mountain cabin.

F. R. Names Curley, Ruth Owen Envoys

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt today sent to the Senate nominations for two diplomatic posts—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen to be Minister to Denmark and Iceland, and Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, to be Ambassador to Poland.

Mrs. Owen, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, is the first American woman ever nominated to a major diplomatic post. She previously served in Congress from Florida.

Farrell Kin Injured In Gymnasium Fall

NORWALK, Conn., April 12.—(Universal)—Elizabeth Farrell, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Farrell, and granddaughter of James A. Farrell, retired president of the United States Steel Corporation, is in Norwalk Hospital in a critical condition.

She has a fractured spine as the result of a fall from the horizontal bars in the gymnasium of a private school for girls here.

Legislature Waits Pinchot Utility Bill

HARRISBURG, April 12—(AP.)—Adding to the Legislature's problems came an announcement from Gov. Pinchot that he will submit today his own plan for revising the state's public utility laws.

The Senate-approved McClure bill, granting wider regulatory powers to the Public Service Commission, is being amended in the House Utility Committee.

REDLAND FIELD, CINCINNATI, April 12.—The Spirit of Baseball was rampant in Cincinnati this afternoon as 25,000 fans packed Redland Field to see the Reds and Pirates in the season's opener.

Thousands of old-time lovers of the sport, basking in the sunkissed bleachers and pavilions, indulged pleasant reveries as they looked out upon the greensward to behold a picture that captivated them 25 years ago. The sight of Honus Wagner, leaning bow-legged on a bat near the home plate just before game time, was enough to bring a teardrop to many a veteran.

WAGNER ATTRACTION

The Wagnerian appeal was the keynote of the day and Honus, the famous square shoulders and bow legs draped in a new uniform, was cheered at every turn. Honus was in a perfect setting and the effect was much more pleasing than another spectacle underneath the stands, where the "Wurzburger" was flowing again and where thousands stopped to quench a thirst.

Fifteen minutes before the battle two bands paraded around the field, led by Gov. George White, of Ohio, and Mayor Russell Wilson, of Cincinnati.

The band in the lead gave the occasion a fine touch when it struck up "Happy Days Are Here Again," but there was a cheering from the Donie Bush Rooting and Marching Club a minute later when a Negro band from Bush's home town, Indianapolis, played "Back Home in Indiana."

DELEGATION ATTENDS

Three hundred of Bush's friends and neighbors came down for the opener.

Five minutes before the start of the fight, the ropes were stretched in right field for the overflow crowd.

Mayor Wilson introduced Wagner to the crowd over a loud speaker erected at the home plate. The "Flying Dutchman" was given a deafening ovation. Honus then said in the "mike:"

Bill Swift and Silas Johnson were the opposing pitchers. Earl Grace received the Pittsburgh sharpshooter, Ernie Lombardi doing the backstop duty for the Reds.

Home Loan Measure Ready

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The administration's $2,000,000,000 home loan bill, designed to save the homes of millions of Americans from the auctioneer's hammer, will be introduced in the Senate today by Senator Robinson (Dem.), of Arkansas.

President Roosevelt will ask enactment of the bill in a special message.

The bill would put new life blood into the Home Loan banking system.

It will provide for creation of associations of borrowers to take advantage of the benefits of the present Home Loan banking system. This provision will be similar to the section of the Federal Land Bank law, which called for associations of farm borrowers.

One section of the bill will provide emergency relief to rescue home-owners from immediate foreclosures. The emergency features will create a corporation to issue bonds in exchange for mortgages, with a limit of $2,000,000,000 on the bond issue.

The relief of mortgagors will be extended substantially along the lines in the mortgage relief provided farmers in the pending farm relief bill.

The mortgaged home-owner would execute a new mortgage at 5 per cent interest up to 80 per cent of the appraised value of the property. The corporation would take the new mortgage and pay off th old one in bonds. The plan would call for co-operation from the mortgagee.

POPE REBUKES NAZI CHIEF

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

ROME, April 12.—The tenet of Christianity which inveighs against religious persecution was extolled by Pope Pius XI today in lengthy conversations with Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen and Capt. Herman Wilhelm Goering, of Germany.

It is one of the greatest Christian traditions, the Pontiff said in talking with Goering, Nazi minister without portfolio and Chancellor Adolf Hitler's "right hand man," to abandon every act of persecution against followers of different faiths.

While the Vatican refused specific comment, it was generally believed the Pontiff was referring to the Nazi party's campaign against Jews in Germany.

ONE BRITON CONFESSES SABOTAGE

Pleads Guilty as Red Trial Opens; Aimed To 'Aid England'

MOSCOW, April 12.—(AP.)—W. H. MacDonald, brought out of a Russian prison, where he spent five weeks in solitary confinement, pleaded guilty today when he and five other Englishmen were placed on trial charged with sabotage, bribery and espionage.

Th others pleaded not guilty to an indictment the details of which are based upon the testimony of a woman named Kutuzova. She said they all were spies, that they had bribed Russians for informatino which they sent to England, and that they had systematically damaged important Russian industrial plants.

MacDonald, a tall, pale man with a goatee, said not a word to his colleagues, all employes of the British Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Company, when the guards brought him into "October Hall," a big room in the trades union headquarters, packed to capacity and guarded by soldiers with fixed bayonets.

They led him to a seat in the front row of the prisoners' dock. Audrey Vishinsky, the bespectacled prosecutor, called the court to order and a clerk read the indictment.

The other defendants—Allan Monkhouse, Charles Nordwell, L. C. Thornton, A. W. Gregory and John Cushny—pleaded not guilty after MacDonald's plea was received. Eleven Russian employes of the Metropolitan-Vickers Company, one of them a woman, also are on trial.

Charges 'Trumped Up,' Britain Insists

LONDON, April 12.—(INS.)—All the charges against the British employes of Metropolitan-Vickers, Ltd., now on trial at Moscow, are regarded by the British government as "trumped up," despite the confession of W. H. MacDonald, announced in the Soviet court today, it is authoritatively stated.

The foreign office professed no surprise at MacDonald's plea of guilty, declaring it was anticipated in view of the report received from British Charge D'Affaires Strang, and the charges against W. H. Thornton, another accused Briton, as disclosed by the white paper issued by the foreign office Monday.

The government's action, it was stated, including preparations for an embargo against Soviet goods, remains unchanged despite MacDonald's confession.

Face Lifting Fatal To Woman; Two Held

LOS ANGELES, April 12.—(AP.)—C. E. White and his assistant, Miss Ann Aeberli, were held by police today on suspicion of murder charges after the death last night of Mrs. Aline Farnum, 31, whom they had given a "face rejuvenating" treatment.

Hanging a Woman!

RUTH JUDD, convicted murderess in Arizona, tried to commit suicide in her cell, and was prevented from doing so by the authorities, who proudly published the fact.

Why do civilized or semi-civilized people interfere with a suicide in order to have the savage satisfaction of hanging a woman?

Let us assume that Ruth Judd is a murderess, and was properly convicted. This seems entirely probable.

Let us assume that she lies when she says that she killed in self-defense.

Let us assume the worst phases of the case are proved, or at least not disproved.

Still, what is to be gained by subjecting a woman to the horrible, brutal, savage death penalty of hanging?

Can we say it has a deterrent effect upon other criminals?

Apparently not, because in the states where they have no death penalty there are no more murders than in the states where they have death penalties.

Furthermore, in all history horrible punishments have not prevented crime. They have merely brutalized the community or given evidence of an already brutalized community.

THE ANCIENT penalties of boiling in oil and flaying alive have been abandoned, but hanging still persists as a survival of savagery.

If the woman is a menace to the community, she would remove that menace by suicide, and why prevent her from removing that menace in order to preserve her and hang her to satisfy our savage instincts?

Does the state set a Christian example by committing murder for murder, when Christ taught his followers to abandon the ancient, brutal and brutalizing policy of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth?

Does the state set a civilized example in committing murder for murder?

The woman murdered in a frenzy of anger or jealousy or fear or hatred.

PLANS WIDE POLICE REFORM

City's New Executive Pledges Efficient Administration

With a pledge of far-reaching police reform, John S. Herron today became Mayor of Pittsburgh, elected by Council to fill the unexpired term of Charles H. Kline.

Sworn in before a throng that jammed Council Chamber and overflowed into the corridors, the new Mayor urged co-operation by all city employes, promised efficiency and economy and heralded a new deal in police affairs in these words:

"It is my hope that we will be able to bring about a spirit of public confidence in our police department and that we will obtain the high standard of services therefrom which the city deserves."

In the crowd listening to the Mayor's speech were Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and Public Safety Director James M. Clark, both slated for dismissal by Herron.

RECEIVES 5 VOTES

Herron, who has been president of Council and acting Mayor since former Mayor Kline resigned two weeks ago to escape a jail term on a malfeasance conviction, received five votes of fellow councilmen—those of C. B. Connelley, W. Y. English, Harry A. Little, George S. Oliver and W. J. Soost.

P. J. McArdle received one vote, that of Councilman Charles Anderson.

Herron, McArdle and Councilman Robert Garland, the latter two possible mayoralty candidates, were recorded as not voting.

Councilman Little was elected president of Council to take Herron's place. Herron's bond of $25,000 was accepted and the former bricklayer moved into the flower-bedecked Mayor's office as the city's chief executive.

WIFE PRESENT

Mrs. Herron, occupying a seat of honor in the first row reserved for spectators in Council Chamber, heard Councilman Oliver, in nominating her husband, describe him as "capable, honest, industrious" and as a man who had come up from the ranks and therefore "sympathetic with the needs of the humblest citizen."

Seconding speeches were made by Councilmen Connelley, Soost, Little and English. All drew applause.

In striking contrast was the silence which prevailed as Council-

Gangster Leader Shot Dead in Barber Chair

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 12.—(AP.)—Michael Fiore, leader of local bootleggers, was shot to death, and Dominic Rescigno was probably fatally wounded today by two gunmen who made their escape.

Fiore, against whom deportation proceedings are pending, was instantly killed while seated in a barber chair. Rescigno was shot when he made a move to interfere with the gunmen.

Murphy Approved By Senate Group

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—The nomination of Frank Murphy, former Mayor of Detroit, to be Governor General of the Philippines was unanimously approved today by the Senate Territories Committee and ordered reported to the Senate.

Pinchot Joins Support Of 'President's Day'

Gov. Gifford Pinchot today joined the multitudes who on Sunday, April 30, will observe "President's Day." In a telegram to the editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Gov. Pinchot said:

"I hope that President's Day will become an annual event, celebrated throughout the length of the land, and I shall participate personally in the observance of Sunday, April 30, as President's Day."

It is planned to make the day one of prayer and thanksgiving.

Thomas Joyce, plumber's assistant, a naturalized American, halted his work on a water main in Bigelow boulevard. A silent man, he listened to the story of the idea, and then commented:

"I like the idea."

"I read about it in the newspaper. It's good, I'm for it."

STATE AVERTS RELIEF CRISIS

HARRISBURG, April 12.—(INS.)—Thousands of Pennsylvanians threatened with starvation by the exhaustion of state relief funds were assured of continued aid today when the Senate unanimously passed the $5,000,000 Talbot emergency appropriation.

The bill was relayed immediately to the House for concurrence in amendments. It was expected to go to Gov. Gifford Pinchot for signing this afternoon.

The money, to be supplemented by a $7,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, will be used as needed between now and June 1.

Administration and organization leaders agreed upon the emergency $5,000,000 appropriation today.

After agreeing on the emergency appropriation, the Governor received assurance by telephone from Fred C. Croxton, assistant to the directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, that a federal loan of $7,000,000 will be granted immediately. Eris Biddle, assistant director of the State Emergency Relief Board, will leave for Washington to obtain the money as soon as the Talbot bill is signed.

The $5,000,000 will be appropriated out of the general fund. Six million dollars in savings from the recommendations of the Sterling finance committee will be used to repay the appropriation.

Farm Mortgage Vote Delayed by Baseball

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—An agreement was reached in the House today to postpone the roll call vote on the Jones farm mortgage refinancing bill until tomorrow to permit members to attend the opening baseball game.

SANITY TRIAL FOR RUTH SET

FLORENCE, Ariz., April 12.—(AP.)—Superior Judge E. L. Green today set Friday, April 14, as the date for commencement of a hearing to determine the sanity of Winnie Ruth Judd, who is condemned to hang April 21 in the "trunk murder" case in which she confessed killing two women friends.

The sanity hearing was formally requested today by Warden A. G. Walker, of the Arizona State Prison.

Warden Walker expressed belief Mrs. Judd, during her 14 months' wait for the gallows, has become mentally deranged.

Arizona law does not countenance the execution of a person who has become insane after entering prison.

Mrs. Judd is under sentence to be hanged April 21, for murder of Agnes Anne Leroi. Her defense at her trial in January and February of 1932, was insanity.

An application for a writ of habeas corpus filed by attorneys for Mrs. Judd was denied by the State Supreme Court today at Phoenix.

Snow in Mountains Above Uniontown

10 Months' Blindness Ends for Girl Bride

A 10-month night of blindness was ended today for Mrs. Catherine Aftanas, 17, when an operation by Dr. A. J. Guerinot, Pittsburgh specialist, was crowned with success.

It was almost a year ago the young bride was burned in her right eye while getting a beauty treatement. A sympathetic infection, spreading to her other eye, soon brought on total blindness.

In the matter of a short time sight will be completely restored and Mrs. Aftanas is reunited today with her rejoicing family and husband in Hollidays Cove, W. Va.

'PRESIDENT'S DAY' PLAN GETS NATION-WIDE SUPPORT

HOUSE GROUP CONFERS ON 5-DAY WEEK

Secretary Perkins Sees Passage of Measure At Present Session

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(INS.)—After a two-hour session behind closed doors of the House Labor Committee today, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins said she "hoped and believed" that a modified five-day week bill can be passed in the present special session of Congress.

The statement followed disclosures at the White House that President Roosevelt favored the principle of short week legislation to spread employment, although he has not specifically indorsed the Black 30-hour bill.

Whatever measure ultimately passes through the congressional crucible, the administration wants it to contain sufficient elasticity for broad administration.

One of the things to be guarded against, in Mr. Roosevelt's opinion, is that shortened working hours does not tend to increase production, as has happened in some cases which have come under the President's observation.

With the general principles of the Black 30-hour bill, President Roosevelt is in sympathy. These comprise the spreading of employment in industry, and the prevention of industrial workers laboring too long hours.

But also involved in the question, the President believes, is whether the government should try to spread work in a given industry, or throughout all industry.

BORAH UPHOLDS SOVIET RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—Replying to a speech against recognition of Soviet Russia, Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, told the Senate today that Russia had "no intention of destroying the government of the United States and I know perfectly well they couldn't destroy it if they wanted to."

Borah, long an advocate of American recognition of the Soviet government, made the declaration after Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, had delivered a long prepared address in which he asserted recognition would be tantamount to "placing a gun in their hands with which to shoot us."

Scratchin' Each Other's Back -:- By QUIN HALL

F. R. STUDIES BANKING BILLS

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt is studying the banking legislation carefully and has taken no position for or against any bill.

The President regards the negotiations on banking reform proposals as still in the preliminary stage and further conferences will be held.

At about the time the President's views were being disclosed at the White House, Chairman Steagall, of the House Banking Committee, was telling newspapermen:

"I prophesy that one of these days there will be a bill passed embodying the guarantee bill's features."

Steagall is author of the bill passed by the House in the last Congress providing for a guarantee of deposits. Only recently he announced that he and Senator Glass had agreed on the principle of a banking reform and non-governmental bank guarantee bill in principle.

PAROLE LOOMS FOR SUCCOP

Bertram L. Succop, former director of Property and Supplies under ex-Mayor Charles H. Kline, is expected to obtain his parole from jail in a month or less.

Sentenced to a year in county jail on a malfeasance charge, Succop has ready for presentation to Judge Thomas D. Finletter in Common Pleas Court at Philadelphia one of the longest petitions for parole ever gathered in Pittsburgh. Thousands have signed.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park will join the application for parole, it was learned.

Roosevelt Thanks Akron Rescue Ship

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt sent a letter today to Capt. Carl Dalldorf, of the German ship Phoebus, tendering "this nation's gratitude" for the services of the crew in rescuing three of the members of the Akron.

PARLEY SCOPE WIDENED

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—The State Department today announced that notes had been sent to all the nations having diplomatic misisons in Washington which had not been invited to send special representatives to talk economics with President Roosevelt, inviting them to exchange views through diplomatic channels.

The action followed reports of dissatisfaction among some of the smaller countries, which were not among the 11 picked out for special invitations to send their leading statesmen to Washington.

The notes, phrased in the third person, were sent last night to 44 diplomatic missions in Washington, inviting their nations to exchange views on broad aspects of the general economic conference and of armaments limitation.

PLAN WEDDING IN SICKROOM

The sick room of J. Paul Graham, of Saxonburg, will be transformed tonight. Not completely, however.

For he will have to remain in bed, an invalid for a year, while his daughter, Miss Mary Alice Graham, becomes the bride of Louis Alan McKee, Wheeling (W. Va.) attorney.

The wedding will be held at 6 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. Emil Lewey, a friend of the family, will read the service.

Miss Graham, a graduate of Westminster College, took her master's degree at the University of Pittsburgh, and taught English at Westinghouse High School. Mr. McKee was graduated from the University of West Virginia. They will live in Wheeling after July 1.

Fireman Injured Working on Truck

Hoseman Stanley Majestic, 35, 5230 Keystone street, of No. 34 engine house, was burned on the head and face today when chemicals were ignited by sparks from a storage battery being recharged on a pumper. He was taken to Mercy Hospital.

The accident happened as Majestic disconnected the battery wires on the fire apparatus in preparation for answering an alarm, according to fire officials.

POLICE LINKED IN VOTE FRAUD, U. S. FINDS

2 Patrolmen Named As 'Night Riders,' Agents Learn

City policemen were among the "night-riders" who flitted about the Oakland district in the early morning following last fall's election, according to reports which have been given to investigating authorities.

Two city patrolmen have been named as the men who got an election board official out of bed at 6 a. m. and escorted him to an Alderman's office to sign a new tally sheet.

Investigators of the United States Department of Justice have interviewed scores of residents of the district, it is reported.

Officials of the City Department of Public Safety have been asked for co-operation, it is reported, in determining what part policemen may have played in the election.

Federal authorities are concerned in the election, as it deals with the fight for the Congressional seat in the Thirty-second district between Mrs. Anne E. Felix and Michael J. Muldowney.

Testimony in that case was to be resumed this afternoon at the City-County Building.

CHURCH OUSTER FACES AUTHOR

TRENTON, N. J., April 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Pearl S. Buck, missionary and author of two widely publicized novels of China, has imperilled her standing in the Presbyterian Church as a result of a magazine article expressing doctrinal views differing from the fundamental tenets of the church, it was revealed yesterday at a meeting of the New Brunswick Presbytery.

Dr. Robert E. Speer, senior secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, replying to a question of Dr. J. Gresham Machen, of Westminster Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, as to what action will be taken abainst Mrs. Buck, said her case was one of two under consideration.

In the article, published in January, Mrs. Buck is alleged to have indicated that a belief in the doctrine that heathens are damned unless they accept the Christian gospel is not essential.

American Embassy Guarded in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, April 12.—(AP.)—For unnanounced reasons, strong guards of police and plain clothesmen were guarding the American embassy and the Japanese legation today.

It was learned that six secret military policemen have been assigned to duty at the railroad station when the new American ambassador, Josephus Daniels, arrives Saturday morning.

Stock Exchange Legislation Near

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(INS.)—Legislation relative to supervision of stock exchanges will be considered shortly by Attorney General Cummings and Secretary of Commerce Roper.

Roper said today he had not yet conferred with Cummings on the measure. Many suggestions have been made, however, as to what form the legislation should take.

All Should Observe 'President's Day' on Sunday, April 30

A GREAT CHAPTER in American history, clearly destined to mark an epoch, is being written under our very eyes.

The record made by President Roosevelt since his inauguration would be noteworthy almost beyond comparison if it represented the achievements of a full presidential term.

This lustrous record, however, has been made in little more than thirty days.

And what a record!

The President has indeed ushered in a new era—a new deal, as he simply and less pretentiously describes his objective.

He has changed the direction of our gaze. As a people we are looking up not down, forward not back.

We are at last aroused from our dangerous acquiescence in practices we knew to be wrong, but doubted our power to curb.

Bold and sustained action has banished lethargy from our government.

Problems, intricate and great, which have seemed in the past to mock efforts at their solution, have yielded to the clear-brained analysis and the vigorous onset of the President's determination to get on with the task of national reconstruction and to lose no time about it.

THE NATIONAL government has made prodigious gains in popular respect as it has demonstrated the resolve and capacity to be master in its own house.

Quibbling, cavilling and all the voices of obstruction have been silenced by the clear, true and authentic note of America which has sounded in the utterances of Franklin Roosevelt.

To set forth the great steps he has taken, the great measures he has formulated, the great reforms he has instituted, although they are the accomplishments of but a single month, would fill many a crowded page.

His restoration of the federal credit; the reduction of powerful and organized minorities to an attitude of proper respect for the national government and for the people as a whole; his far flung attack upon the problems of human relief through direct federal activities and grants of financial aid to localities; his measures of assistance to the distressed owners of homes and small farms; the protection he has afforded hard-pressed debtors from the loss of home and livelihood through the harsh operation of the laws; the stimulation he has given re-employment through great public undertakings financed by the government; the injection into business, and particularly into financial trusteeship, of decent standards of fidelity—these are but some of the things he has accomplished.

IS IT STRANGE that a great feeling of admiration and gratitude is welling up in the breasts of Americans?

They see the work of their President and they pronounce it good. They wish him to know that they perceive it and appreciate it.

Throughout the land there is a rising demand that a day be set apart which the people may use to speak their heart to the President who is serving them so well.

He knows his people. This is manifest beyond dispute.

They wish him to realize that his people know him—know what he is doing, know what he is overcoming, know what he is resisting—for the good name and credit of the country and for the pride and self-respect of his countrymen.

We have a "Mother's Day" and a "Father's Day." Why should we not have a "President's Day," when the people of this country may repair to their churches and in earnestness and piety give thanks that a man like Roosevelt, with the interests of this country foremost in his heart, is in the White House?

It would be meet and right so to do. Let us not delay. Let us fix the day now, a day soon at hand, when the feelings coursing so strongly in the breasts of Americans can find vent and expression.

Let the day be the Sabbath Day—the thirtieth day of this month of April.

Americans, regardless of party, wish to express the gratitude they feel for what their President has accomplished and for what he has pledged himself to do in the future for their welfare.

And they wish, in all devoutness, to utter their prayers that he may have health and strength to carry to completion all that he so beneficently plans.

LEADERS JOIN IN SUPPORT OF TRIBUTE

Governors and Mayors Set April 30 for Observance

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 12.—President's Day, Sunday, April 30.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts today the idea caught the fancy of the American people and fired their enthusiasm.

Governors of great states, mayors of powerful cities, leaders of the clergy, the bar and the industrial world, one after another joined by proclamation and pledge to unite the nation in prayers of thankfulness for the services already rendered his country by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

PRAISED BY LEHMAN

At Albany, Gov. Lehman, of New York, said:

"I think it a splendid idea to observe one day as 'President's Day,' especially in these times, when the head of our government needs the loyalty and moral support of all the people.

"I am sure that the President has the good wishes and support of the entire nation. It will be a wonderful thing to give a visible demonstration of loyalty upon a specifically designated day."

Nothing has so touched the imagination of the people as did the mere suggestion of a President's Day.

PROCLAMATIONS ISSUED

As the telegraph wires hummed with the message from Gov. Lehman, Gov. Rolph, of California, and Comstock, of Michigan, each were issuing proclamations, officially naming Sunday, April 30, President's Day in their respective states.

At Washington, political barriers were swept aside and Republican and Democrat Senators and members of the House of Representatives vied with each other in expressing their enthusiastic approval of the plan to honor the President and pray for a continuance of strength to carry on.

Mayor O'Brien, of New York, indorsed both the thought that had first proposed the idea of a President's Day and indicated his intention to direct the attention of the people of the city to observance of the day by special proclamation.

Mayor John Boyd Thatcher, of Albany, and Mayor John C. Porter, of Los Angeles, echoed the sentiments of New York's chief executive.

service department of the Keystone Buick. They, too, had heard of it, and they agreed:

Traffic Patrolman Fred Simpson was looking over the new Mellon Institute, under construction. Beside him were Ray Giudici and W. O. Hapsley, both construction men on the job. They said:

"We have every right to honor a man while he's alive. The President has a hard job, and the nation should support him in his leadership."

Bowers Starts Study For Ambassador Post

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—Claude G. Bowers, new Ambassador to Spain, took a desk in the State Department today to prepare for his work at Madrid.

The new envoy, a native of Indiana and a widely-known author and editorial writer, visited the Spanish embassy yesterday and looked in on the debate at the Senate, where he once served as a secretary.

BREWMASTER ADOLPH OETTINGER

F. R. Tells Latins to End War, Trade Blockade

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—Peace and elimination of trade barriers were held up by President Roosevelt today as the great needs of the American republics.

Speaking to diplomats of the 20 other American nations at a solemn session of the Pan American Union's governing board in the observance of Pan American Day, he called undeclared warfare between Paraguay and Bolivia and Peru and Colombia, a "backward step."

His address has been anxiously awaited throughout the Americas, whose statesmen have joined with the United States, and the League of Nations in vain attempts to obtain peace.

More important to some of them, however, was his proposal that the American governments move promptly to eliminate inter-American trade barriers. Standing before the great mahogany table from the Dominican republic, around which were seated the chiefs of missions of 20 nations, the President called upon their governments to initiate steps to "abolish all unnecessary and artificial barriers and restrictions which now hamper the healthy flow of trade between the peoples of the American republics."

The President said the role of the United States would be that of a "good neighbor." He told the diplomats:

"Never before has the significance of the word 'good neighbor' been so manifest in international relatons. Never have the need and benefit of neighborly co-operation in every form of human activity been so evident as they are today."

PRESIDENT DAY CACHET READY

In observance of the nation-wide day of prayer as an expression of gratitude to President Roosevelt, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will sponsor a cachet for "President's Day," the movement organized by the Hearst newspapers for Sunday, April 30. This cachet will be appropriate in design and will be applied to covers for mailing at Pittsburgh on the above date.

There will be no charge for this commemorative cover. Collectors and others desiring this cachet are requested to use 6¾ envelopes, stamped, self-addressed and unsealed. They are to be mailed under separate cover to the Cachet Department, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., before April 27.

The cachet fad is sweeping the nation like wildfire and this "President's Day" commemorative will be a valuable addition to collections.

To those who do not know about the significance of cachets it might be added that it is a design printed or stamped on envelopes in commemoration of important events in history.

Bill for Municipal Moratoria Tabled

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—The House Judiciary Committee today tabled the McLeod bill, under which municipalities could have obtained 10-year moratoria on their indebtedness.

Bag of Peanuts Only Loot of Prowlers

A nickel bag of peanuts was the only loot of prowlers who entered Morris Public School, South Twenty-fifth and Sarah streets, police announced. A side window was jimmied. Lockers were ransacked.

MEYER RESIGNS RESERVE POST

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(INS.)—Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, has submitted his resignation effective upon President Rosevelt's choice of a successor, the White House announced today.

The President has not chosen anyone to fill the place yet, and Meyer probably will remain until he does.

The President is weighing the merits of Adolph C. Miller, of San Francisco, and Angus McLean, former governor of North Carolina, who have been prominently mentioned as Meyer's probable successor. Miller is vice governor of the board and one of its original members.

Governor's Statement On President's Day

Pennsylvania today joined the ranks of states which will observe President's Day on April 30 as Gov. Gifford Pinchot expressed with the following telegram his approval of the event sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers:

"Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph:

"I am very happy to co-operate in the movement that has been begun to celebrate Sunday, April 30, as 'President's Day.'

"This national movement proposes that the people of the United States congregate in their places of worship on that day to pray for divine guidance for the President and for his continued health and strength. I am confident that the people of Pennsylvania will be glad to give thanks that a leader like Franklin Roosevelt is in the White House in these trying times, and to ask that strength and wisdom be given him in accomplishing all that he plans to do in the interests of the United States.

"I hope that President's Day will become an annual event, celebrated throughout the length and breadth of the land, and I shall participate personally in the observance of Sunday, April 30, as President's Day.

"Sincerely yours,

"GIFFORD PINCHOT."

MOTHER DOOMS BABY AS 'BETTER DEAD THAN BLIND'

SPURNS PLEAS OF DOCTORS TO REMOVE EYE

Priest, Judge Urge Malignant Tumor Be Removed

With these words Mrs. John Vasko, wife of a day laborer here, condemned her 2-year-old daughter Helen to what physicians say is almost certain death, rather than permit a surgical operation which would remove one of the baby's eyes.

The father pointed to the baby crawling on the floor:

The physicians explained that so far Helen's ailment has been deceivingly painless. She plays with her doll, eats well and appears normal except for the tumor afflicting her left eye. It has been diagnosed as a glioma of the retina, a progressive tumor which will eat its way to the brain, in time, and cause death.

This was explained to the parents. A parish priest pleaded with them; a judge of the Westchester County Children's Court joined in the pleas; a famous eye specialist was summoned and, after examining little Helen, tried scientific reasoning to sway the parents' opposition to surgery, all to no avail. Mrs. Vasko declared:

"God gave her to me. If he wants her he will take her. I will not have her eye taken out."

When the mother refused to permit the operation the physicians appealed to the authorities, but Judge Smyth, before whom the case was heard, was uncertain whether there was legal precedent for ordering a surgical operation over parental objection. The appellate court has been asked to rule on the case.

CUPID SURVIVES GEM LOSS, PLOT

The tall, attractive, good-natured blonde daughter of Dr. Maitland Alexander isn't going to let any missing pearls or extortion plots interfere with her matrimonial plans.

Today, the doctor, who is pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church, and Mrs. Alexander, from their home in Sewickley announced Madelaine's engagement.

The young man in the case, William Alexander Gordon III, of East Williston, L. I., is the same who accompanied Miss Alexander to a movie in Ambridge just before they discovered her $50,000 pearl necklace was missing—last November.

A $10,000 reward was offered for the return of the necklace, but it remains missing.

There were a few hours in January when Miss Alexander thought the necklace might be on the way back.

Her agent, G. F. Ferrier, who had advertised the reward, received a letter which instructed him to apply for a package containing the pearls at the room clerk's desk in the Mayfair Hotel.

But first Mr. Ferrier must leave $15,000 in a container under the East Bellevue Bridge.

County detectives waited, concealed, near the bridge and arrested a man who was later discharged.

Needless to say, there were no pearls at the room clerk's desk.

JUDGE JAMES R. MACFARLANE SWEARING JOHN S. HERRON INTO OFFICE AS CITY'S MAYOR

2 FIGHT CHURCH HOLDUP CHARGE

The trial jury is hearing the testimony in the courtroom of visiting Judge William A. McConnell, of Beaver County, after having been locked up overnight on orders of the judge.

Dr. Shelton positively identified Caslin and King as the robbers, and told how they had invaded his office at 11 a. m., and at the point of revolvers, tied him and Miss Jennings, his secretary, and David Pengrew, the church janitor. Miss Jennings and Pengrew also identified the men.

Caslin, in his own defense, declared he and King were asleep in their bed at a rooming house, 4500 Butler street, until noon the day of the robbery. Two women at the rooming house testified they had opened the bedroom door about 11 o'clock, intending to change the bed linen, and had seen the men asleep.

Girls March Out As School Burns

SIMSBURY, Conn., April 12.—(AP.)—The Beaverbrook Building of the Ethel Walker School, a girls' preparatory and finishing institution, was destroyed by fire yesterday with a loss estimated by school officials at $150,000. The building housed offices, the main dining room and a dormitory where 80 to 170 girls of the fashionable school lived.

About 25 persons, including a few students, were in the 70-year-old building when the fire was discovered. They filed out within a minute or two without confusion.

PAJAMA PARTY DIVORCES VIDOR

LOS ANGELES, April 12.—(Universal.)—Mysterious nightly absences from home—detectives—then, one night, she found him in an apartment with a girl, and he was in his pajamas.

This was the amazing story told by Eleanor Boardman, screen actress, yesterday when she came into Superior Court in a surprise move and obtained a divorce from King Vidor, noted film director.

She named Betty Hill, script girl, as "the other woman" in the case. Neither Miss Hill nor Vidor were in court.

In addition to the decree Judge Valentine awarded the actress custody of the couple's two children, Antonia, 5, and Belinda, 2; gave her $500 a month for their support, and approved a property settlement, giving Miss Boardman a substantial share of property valued at $1,000,000.

CRIPPLE JUMPS FROM FIRE TRAP

Trapped on the second floor, Miss Sarah L. Moats, 39, a cripple, leaped from her burning home, 634 East Tenth avenue, Tarentum, early today, fracturing her sound leg.

Two brothers of Miss Moats, Jarrett J., 26, and John, 24, also forced to jump when their escape was cut off by flames, were uninjured.

The fire, which caused an estimated loss of $6,000, destroyed the Moats home. It was discovered by John Moats, who was awakened by smoke.

man Anderson in nominating McArdle, hailed him as an "independent," declaring:

"There is no man who owns him and no man who controls him."

Herron's induction was halted momentarily when, as his right hand was raised to take the oath, McArdle raised the point whether Herron had resigned as a member of Council. To clear away any technical barriers, Herron orally tendered his resignation, which was accepted.

LEADERS PRESENT

Present for the ceremony, said to be without precedent in that Council was called upon to fill the place of a mayor ousted from office, were numerous ward chairmen and city officials and political leaders.

Mayor Herron presented to the crowd John M. Goehring, aged 84, first president of the Council of nine, back in 1911. Congressman M. J. Muldowney, who quit as Councilman to take his Washington post, was there, as were Pat O'Malley, Second Ward Republican chairman; Edgar Kufmann, Frank J. Lanahan and civic leaders.

It appeared likely that no move to fill the vacancy in Council caused by Herron's elevation to the Mayoralty would be made for several weeks.

In acknowledging his election by Council as Mayor, Mr. Herron said:

"It is not my intention to attempt to make a long speech at this time, or to outline at any great length the policies that I hope to be able to carry out.

"I am very grateful to the members of Council who elected me and I feel a deep sense of my responsibilities. I shall endeavor to conduct this office so as to bring credit to you, as well as myself.

ASKS CO-OPERATION

"My long association with you and my knowledge of municipal affairs has taught me that very little can be accomplished in the interests of the city of Pittsburgh without your co-operation. It is my hope that I shall be able to conduct this office so as to merit that co-operation.

"It is my intention to consult with public-spirited citizens who have the interests of their city at heart and I hope to bring about a better understanding of our problems which are of interest to all the people.

"It is my hope that we will be able to bring about a spirit of public confidence in our police department and that we will obtain the high standard of service therefrom which the city deserves.

"For the city employes I have nothing but the highest regard, and I am quite sure that they will co-operate with me in accomplishing the results hoped for. To bring about a successful administration, it will require the united effort of all of the city employes.

"Words, after all, mean very little—action counts. I ask a suspension of judgment on the part of the skeptical until we are given time to demonstrate our sincerity of purpose. I am quite sure that those who really desire economy and efficiency will be quite pleased with our actions.

"Again, gentlemen, allow me to thank you for this vote of confidence and to again voice the hope that we will be able to continue on for the best interests of our city. I thank you."

Coyne Tells Clark How He Stands In Cabinet

Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Senator James J. Coyne, sponsor of the new Mayor Herron, had a talk about jobs, according to report. This is the accepted version:

Clark:

"How do I stand, Senator?"

Coyne:

"Well, I'll tell you, Director, there's a lot of opposition to you."

Reports name Harmar T. Denny, Jr., as Clark's successor.

M'KNIGHT GIRL, LAWYER AGREE

Difficulties between Madeline McKnight, daughter of the late Paddy McKnight, Soho political boss, and Attorney Howard Neely, whom she sought to have ousted as executor of her father's estate, have been settled, her counsel, J. Frank McKenna, said today.

A petition in Orphans Court for removal of Neely as executor will be withdrawn, according to McKenna. The girl, former student at Mt. Mercy Academy, inherited $125,000 from her father, who died in January from carbon monoxide fumes in his home.

The daughter, a minor, had charged that Neely failed to obtain money in slot machines she said her father owned and that he was the legal representative of the Oakland Real Estate Company, owned by State Senator James J. Coyne, which owed the McKnight estate $27,000. Neely is said to have explained he couldn't find any machines and that he had quit as counsel for the realty company when he was named executor of the McKnight estate.

POISON HIDDEN IN LEG FATAL

Poison, which he carried in one of his artificial legs, caused the death of William Price, 50, of 1715 Fifth avenue, yesterday, the Coroner announced today. Price died suddenly in the McCance Building and death was supposed to have been due to heart trouble.

After an empty bottle that had contained carbolic acid was found in the leg, Dr. J. W. McMeans conducted an autopsy and held death due to taking poison.

Price, a former railroader, it is said, tried to borrow money on some insurance policies from an artificial limb company in the McCance Building. The case was listed as a probable suicide.

Mills, Radio Singer, Shows Slight Gain

CHICAGO, April 12.—(Universal.)—John Mills, one of the four Mills brothers, lay critically ill today of lobar pneumonia at Provident Hospital, but was said by his physicians to be slightly improved.

FLAW IN AKRON HINTED AT NAVY QUIZ

Orders to Strengthen Girders Issued Before Crash

LAKEHURST, N. J., April 12.—(AP.)—Lieut. Com. Edwin F. Cochrane, assembly and repair officer at the naval air station, today testified at the naval hearing on the loss of the Akron, that it had been planned, on her return from the last flight, to strengthen the ship's structure in the area in which two of the survivors said they saw two longitudinal girders break. One of those girders was to have been strengthened, he said.

The work was to have started April 7, Cochrane said, and was to have covered the area where deal and Erwin, the two enlisted men who were survivors, said they saw girders break just before the crash.

CONSULTED M'CORD

Cochrane said he had conferred with Commander McCord, commander of the Akron, and the airship's first lieutenant and engineer about the projected repairs, before the last flight. Cochrane was asked:

"Have you any knowledge of why the alterations were ordered?"

"No, sir."

Lieutenant Commander Wiley, the only surviving officer of the Akron, who, designated at his own request an interested party, has the right to examine witnesses, then asked of Cochrane the first question he had put in the hearing so far. He asked:

"As far as you know, was the ship considered perfectly safe to fly without this alteration?"

"Yes, sir."

Wiley was the first witness today.

Much of the questioning and Wiley's answers revolved about the testimony yesterday of Moody Erwin, one of the other two survivors, that when he was at the elevator controls from 11 p. m. until half an hour before the crash, the Akron was decidedly "tail-heavy."

DESCRIBES 'STALL'

Wiley said that theoretically, had her nose pointed upward at an angle or more than 12 or 13 degrees, the airship would have been in a stall.

She might have been in a stall, he said, and this might have been a contributing factor to the crash, but he reiterated his belief that a downward current of air started the plunge into the sea.

He listed among other possible contributing factors loss of gas, a jammed elevator, damage to stabilization surfaces, and breaking of the ship's structure. Although in a heavy rain the dirigible might have picked up in a short time two or three tons of water and in a continued rain four or five tons, Wiley said he did not believe the rain had been heavy enough to have caused "any emergency."

It developed while Wiley was on the stand that only two days before her destruction the Akron had been removed from experimental and training status to the scouting force and had thereby become formally a part of the fleet.

Bodies of Moffett, McCord at Capital

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—The bodies of Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, and Commander Frank C. McCord, captain of the airship Akron, both victims of the ill-fated ship, arrived in the capital late yesterday for burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Both will be buried tomorrow with full military honors.

YOUNG AMERICA 'SUPERIOR,' SHAW SAYS

Sage Bids Farewell To U. S., Assailing Adult Stupidity

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 12.—With the crackling observation that Americans are frittering away their time on most pursuits except for producing and rearing a "distinctly superior crop of children," George Bernard Shaw bade fond farewell to the United States today.

He concluded his first visit to this country by receiving an army of avid and questioning reporters in the salon of the liner Empress of Britain.

For 25 minutes he bandied questions and answers, referred frequently and impatiently to his 16,000-word lecture at the Metropolitan Opera House last night, and as his valedictory drew the conclusion that adult Americans are just as stupid as they were when he first started cannonading them when his now snow-white beard was a fiery red.

JUDGMENT CHANGES

The playwright's encouraging observation concerning the progeny of present-day Americans came unexpectedly when someone asked whether he viewed people differently than in the days of his youth. He said:

"Of course, your standards of judgment change as you grow older. But in general, I find people just as unintelligent now as they were when I was young—except for the fact that American children seem somehow to be a distinctly superior crop."

"Americans have an enormous fund of misdirected energy. This has been applied in politics as well as other fields.

"Can you imagine a man like William Jennings Bryan spending his whole life trying to regenerate the world by reforming silver currency? He had an enthusiasm for it, but this was an enthusiasm for something which did not matter.

'FRITTER AWAY TIME'

"That is what I find to be the trouble with America. Everybody fritters away his time on subjects not highly important."

Pretty soon the interview ended. There were pictures to be taken, and the Empress of Britain was preparing to sail. Shaw's last word was a promise he would visit America again if he lives long enough. He added, deprecatingly:

"But the second visit will mean nothing.

"I shall be entirely forgotten.

"And I shall be very old, too."

Shaw, in his address at the Metropolitan Opera House here last night, delivered himself of opinions on everything from world problems to the "socks on the jaw" that Hollywood film heroes get.

DENOUNCES CONSTITUTION

Gleefully he denounced the United States Constitution as a "charter of anarchism," devised by a people that didn't want to be governed and therefore installed one house of Congress to prevent the other from doing anything.

The financiers of America he called "95 per cent lunatics," and the first thing America should do to speed recovery, he declared, is to nationalize its banks.

He called himself "probably the only one in the world who has hope of America in spite of her follies of the past," and added:

"America may yet take the lead and save the world."

Roosevelt and William Randolph Hearst came in for Shavian mention when the lecturer swerved into a discussion of the "100 per cent American" he encountered in his youth.

Asserting that type of American is being succeeded by another, Shaw added:

"That new sort is physically a little like the other—he has the same imposing presence, he has something of the same eloquence, something of the same dignity and a great deal of the same enthusiasm.

"I think Mr. Franklin Roosevelt is a type of that, rather. I think my friend, Mr. William Randolph Hearst, is rather a type of it. The reason I mention these two gentlemen is not only because they are pretty good specimens of what I mean, but because the symptom of change is that they are both very violently against the Constitution."

RAPS CONGRESS

Shaw declared Roosevelt was appealing to America at the present time "to get rid of your confounded Constitution and give him the power to govern the country." Shaw went on:

"He perhaps hopes he will be able to govern it. He won't, as long as Congress is there to prevent it.

"You hope for a great deal from Mr. Franklin Roosevelt. You will get nothing from him. In his four years, if he has to go on under the Constitution with the usual rotten Congress and all the rest of it, he will inevitably be as great a disappointment as Mr. Hoover."

As to financiers, Shaw saw them, when they were running a country, "running it into a ditch." He said:

"There's only one great man among them—Montagu Norman. His comment on the money problem was, 'I don't understand it.'"

BEER BILL PACT REACHED IN CONFERENCE

HARRISBURG, April 12.—(AP.)—The General Assembly today groped through the dust of crumbling agreements in search of accord on beer control.

Representative Clinton A. Sowers, Philadelphia, said the conference committee on the Sowers-Conner beer control bill has agreed to amend the measure by raising the proposed tax from $1 to $1.24 a barrel.

Later Senator John J. McClure, Delaware, asserted the conferees had reached an agreement to resubmit the bill in substantially the form in which it passed the Senate.

REPEAL MEASURE

The Senate started toward enactment another prohibition repeal convention bill. Sponsored by Senator John J. McClure, Delaware whose previous measure the Governor vetoed, it provides for election of 15 delegates at large.

As approved by the Senate, the Sowers-Conner beer control measure called for a tax of $1 per barrel and provided for licensing of wholesalers and retailers by the County courts. The House refused to concur in the court licensing plan, many of the representatives urging that licenses be issued by commissions.

Sowers indicated that the licensing feature is due for further study and that Gov. Pinchot may be consulted concerning the report.

Sowers said:

"The most economical non-political system is being seriously considered—that of placing the licensing power in the Courts of Quarter Sessions. No new jobs are created and the distressed taxpayer gets the full benefit of all of the revenue, without being burdened with a lot of politicians.

"Bars are prohibited, and places must be visible from the exterior. It will be possible to sell a 6-ounce or 8-ounce glass of beer for a nickel under this bill and the tax rate fixed in it."

SAVE 2 ADRIFT ON LAKE ICE

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., April 12.—(INS.)—Two Cedarville fishermen, Charles and Allie Baker, were recovering today from the rigors of storm and cold which they suffered for 28 hours while adrift on an ice floe in Whitefish Bay.

In a dramatic rescue last night, in which airplanes played a prominent part, a Coast Guard boat manned by Boatswain Earl De Lorme and Jesse Eley and Ross Lawrence reached the ice floe and the two men were dragged to safety, almost exhausted from cold and hunger.

Roaring southeast winds cast the Bakers and another fisherman, Hal Beach, adrift Monday afternoon while they were fishing through holes in the ice on Whitefish Bay. Beach swam a 30-foot gap in the ice to safety, but the wind bore the others two miles out into the storm-swept bay toward Lake Superior.

Estep New Aide In Utility Quiz

Former Congressman Harry A. Estep today had been named associate counsel by the Senate Utilities Investigating Committee to assist Franklin Spencer Edmonds, its new chief counsel succeeding Attorney Oliver K. Eaton.

Estep, a former assistant district attorney here, plans to confer with Edmonds Tuesday on plans to continue the utilities investigation.

Women Drys Rally Against Repeal, Beer

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—Women supporters of prohibition rallied here today to organize their fight to retain the Eighteenth Amendment and seek methods of repealing the new beer law.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, is directing the three-day convention.

Ladies Auxiliary Meets Here in May

The annual session of the Pennsylvania State Camp of the Patriotic Order of Americans, ladies' auxiliary of the Patriotic Order Sons of America, will be held in the William Penn Hotel, May 2 and 3. Delegates from all parts of the state are expected. Marion Miller, McKeesport, is chairlady.

Hanging a Woman!

ily; she had been a harmless person during her life, apparently law-abiding; but overcome by some storm of emotion she committed murder.

But the state murders in cold blood, and it murders with deliberation, premeditation, and intent to kill—and it murders as cruelly and brutally as any murderer can, and finally it insists upon killing with savage methods rather than allowing the woman to put herself out of the way.

THE STATE kills not as a deterrent, for there is no more of a deterrent in hanging than there was in flaying or boiling in oil.

The state kills in the un-Christian, uncivilized spirit of revenge, and insists upon killing in the savage and cruel way that will satisfy that vindictive spirit of revenge.

Is it not about time for modern American states to emerge from the dark ages and discard the customs of the dark ages?

Arizona should not be governed by the precedents of an outgrown age; and surely the men of Arizona should not hang a woman.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Anti-Saloon League State Leader Quits

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—(AP.)—The resignation of the Rev. Dr. Calvin C. Hays, president of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League, was accepted yesterday by the headquarters committee. A committee was designated to select a new president.

The committee voted approval of the plan to elect delegates to the state convention on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment by legislative districts.

Swissvale Prohibits Beer Sale to Minors

Swissvale's younger set will not be privileged to slake its thirst with the new 3.2 beer, it was decreed by the borough council last night. An ordinance prohibiting sale of the new beverage to minors was passed.

The new ruling, the first of Allegheny County's new regulatory laws regarding the new beverage, would impose a $50 fine with an alternative 30-day jail sentence for violation of the ordinance.

SUNDAY SPORTS DECISION UP TO PINCHOT

HARRISBURG, April 12.—(AP.)—Decision as to whether Sunday baseball and football is to be legal in Pennsylvania rests today with Gov. Pinchot.

It is within his power to sign or veto the amended Schwartz bill, which the Senate passed on to him yesterday, or to permit it to become law without his signature. He has not indicated what he will do.

If these Sunday sports become legal, it will be the first breach in the Pennsylvania blue law, enacted 139 years ago.

Football and baseball would be permitted only between 2 and 6 p. m., Sundays, in communities which approve in local referenda next November.

Meanwhile, the Senate, seeking to raise revenue for relief, through Sunday sports, has started through the Legislature the Salus bill. It provides a 10 per cent state tax on all admission fees to Sunday athletic contests, concerts and amusements.

STATE PUSHING BANK REFORMS

HARRISBURG, April 12.—(AP.)—Legislators, bankers and Banking Department officials today neared the end of the work of getting Pennsylvania's proposed new banking legislation into a form to be voted on finally by the Legislature.

The last public hearing left the bankers and department officers in agreement on many phases of the new codes, but still in conflict over sections to regulate private banks and bank affiliates.

These differences were at issue at a closed meetitng of Senate and House Banking Committee members today. Chairmen of the committees said the codes will be reported for final action in one branch not later than tomorrow.

The banking code codifies the law relating to operation of state-controlled institutions and adds new regulations which Department of Bank and Justice officials contend will give depositors protection not provided by existing law. The Banking Department code gathers existing laws and extends the supervisory authority of the department.

Pinchot Presses Legislators to Cut Own Pay

HARRISBURG, April 12.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot wants to know when Pennsylvania's lawmakers are going to cut their own pay.

He pointed out in a radio address last night that he has taken a voluntary reduction and suggested it is not too late for the legislators to refuse their last $600 check, due at adjournment of the present session.

Declaring the Republican organization is "doing its best to wreck my economy program," he said his budget was "mutilated, twisted and turned about" in the general appropriation bill.

WHISKY SUPPLY TO BE MADE

Operations will start this week for the manufacture of 550,000 gallons of whisky at distilling plants of Joseph A. Finch & Co., Schenley, Pa., and A. Overholt & Co., Broad Ford, Pa.

Under permits issued by Commissioner J. M. Doran, of the United States Bureau of Industrial Alcohol, the Finch Company will make 375,000 gallons and the Overholt Company 175,000 gallons for medicinal purposes.

The work will be done under the supervision of representatives of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol. The supply will not be available for withdrawal for four years. It will replenish supplies withdrawn from government concentration warehouses.

Beer Racketeering Faces Ohio Probe

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 12.—County Prosecutor J. H. Leighninger today announced he would investigate charges of State Senator Eugene Roberts that beer permits were issued to known racketeers here.

CITY MANAGER BILL REVIVAL DEFEATED

HARRISBURG, April 12.—The House today defeated, 73 to 105, a motion to discharge its elections committee from further consideration of the Pittsburgh city manager bill. Representative John J. Kane, Allegheny, sponsor of the bill, presented the motion to discharge the committee.

The Kane bill was introduced on January 18, and has been in committee since that time. Kane said:

"There is strong sentiment for this legislation in Pittsburgh. It merely gives the voters of that city the right to pass on a change of government. So far, I've been unable to get a hearing on the bill."

Representative Blumberg, Philadelphia, chairman of the committee, urged defeat of the motion, declaring:

"This bill has had a joint hearing with Senate. There is a wide difference of opinion regarding this bill by members from Allegheny County. The bill is highly controversial."

The measure had been referred to a sub-committee consisting entirely of Allegheny members. Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, McKees Rocks, is chairman of the sub-committee. No report has been made by this group, Blumberg explained.

Allegheny members voting to discharge the committee were: Representatives Beech, William L. Brown, Gallagher, Harmuth, Hoffman, Hough, Kane, McClure, McGinnis, O'Keefe, O'Rourke, Powers, Quinn, Ruby, and William A. Walker.

Those voting against were: Dwyer, Lynch, McBride, Metzler, Rechtenwald, Shenkel, Spann and Steedle.

NADINE BLVD. TANGLE ENDED BY NEW LAW

Under authorization of the newly-enacted condemnation law, giving state and county the right to condemn the property of a public utility for highway purposes, Allegheny County may proceed with the Allegheny River boulevard through Nadine without further compromise. This was revealed today by County Solicitor J. P. Fife and County Engineer E. L. Schmidt.

A compromise plan submitted by the engineering department last summer provides expenditure of $327,000 to relocate tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad and replace facilities of the Pennsylvania Water Company.

No estimate of the cost of proceeding under the new law is available, but it was said substantial saving would be made.

As part of the compromise plan it was proposed to extend the shore line of the Allegheny River to provide additional yard space for the Pennsylvania Water Company and to build a conveyor tunnel with an amortization fund of $100,000 for operation of the plant.

None of these projects will be considered in the new plans which await suggestion from the County Commissioners, according to Schmidt.

CUT FOR SMALL GAS USER URGED

Discrimination against smaller patrons of the "big three" natural gas companies was charged in a resolution adopted by the Brookline Board of Trade.

The resolution asks that the Peoples Gas Company, the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company and the Equitable Gas Company make reductions to those who use less than 15,000 feet per month. The three companies recently announced reductions from 63 to 48 cents per 1,000 feet to patrons who use 15,000 feet or more.

MINE CLOSED AT ATLASBURG

BURGETTSTOWN, Pa., April 12.—The Carnegie Coal Company was not attempting to operate its Atlasburg mine today, according to company officials. Two-thirds of the striking miners were back in the pits yesterday despite a line of jeering pickets, officials announced.

Ninety per cent of the miners in the Burgettstown district have pledged themselves to join the United Mine Workers of America, according to P. T. Fagan, district president. The U. M. W. A. has been working with the miners in an attempt to have their demands met by the company.

ROBERT FETTERS, 15

LAD COMPOSES SONG FOR F. R.

A song he composed—its theme Franklin D. Roosevelt and better times—won Robert Fetters, 15, McKeesport High School sophomore, a reply from the President's secretary.

Robert wrote the words and music to "Hello, Franklin Roosevelt," had it copyrighted and sent a copy to the President.

One line recites:

We're sure to have to make more cheer since you're President."

In a letter of acknowledgement, Louis McH. Howe, secretary to the President, wrote:

"Your very nice letter pleased the President a great deal and he has asked me to thank you very much for it and to send you his best wishes. He is indeed glad to have the copy of your song."

BANK RECEIVER ISSUES REPORT

The closed Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., had $161,483 cash on hand on March 31, Arthur R. Atwood, receiver, disclosed in his report made public today.

Since the closing of the institution on September 21, 1931, $20,934,056 in secured and preferred liabilities have been paid off, $16,081,210 has been paid to unsecured depositors in the form of dividends totaling 60 per cent, and $1,861,000 in Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans have been paid off.

Out of the total assets with a book value of $61,556,954, the receiver has collected $36,050,046. After allowing for losses and offsets to assets, $20,228,777 in assets remain uncollected.

The Duquesne National Bank had $71,578 in cash on March 31 after paying $2,371,128 in secured and preferred liabilities. No dividend has been paid to unsecured depositors.

Out of total assets of $8,529,846, the receiver has collected $2,386,692. After allowing for offsets to assets and losses charged off, $5,300,520 in assets remained uncollected.

Pittsburgher Seeks Freedom in Slaying

HARRISBURG, April 12.—(AP.)—Habeas corpus proceedings were started today for the release of James M. O'Hara, of Pittsburgh, one of four men held by police on charges in the two-year-old slaying of Doris Whittmore. Judge John E. Fox set today for a hearing on the application.

Police say Edward Maxwell, Negro, saw these four men, with two others, carry the 30-year-old woman's body into her home September 30, 1931. The others are being sought.

MIDWIFE HELD IN 7 DEATHS

VIENNA, April 12.—(Universal.)—Antonia Duma, midwife in the Rumanian village of Vilagos, today confessed to making poison from flypaper with which at least seven husbands were murdered by their wives, the newspaper Extrabladet states.

Seven murders reported in Vilagos have already been established.

Twenty other women, mostly widows, have been arrested. The first arrested was the wife of a wealthy farmer named Todoi, who died in circumstances which resulted in a police investigation.

MAY REVIVE TAX JUGGLE CASE

Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator, today said new informations soon will be filed in connection with charges of tax assessment juggling in Homestead.

A month ago four borough officials and two former county tax officials were discharged when arraigned before Alderman E. W. Haas on similar charges. Investigations made prior to that time, it was said, indicated that tax assessments in the borough were juggled for political favors in secret sessions of the County Tax Board.

Those freed by Alderman Haas were Burgess John J. Cavanaugh, C. J. McBride, former secretary of the County Tax Board; Port Eckles, Homestead school superintendent; Jesse House and Martin Delaney, Homestead councilmen, and William Dee, former subordinate county assessor in the borough.

Capeskin Gloves

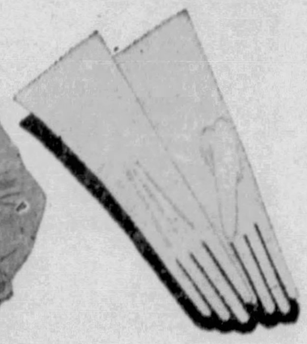
$2.00

Trim, four-button length pull-ons of a soft, supple quality that's washable—at this low price!

Smart gloves that go well with outfits of so many different types . . . a most important feature, when you're selecting accessories with a thought for practicality.

Black, brown, gray, eggshell, white.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .



Initial Handbags

$3.00

Shown here tomorrow for the first time in Pittsburgh . . . copies of one of the season's most individual and most expensive handbags . . . at a modest price most pleasing to Easter shoppers! Clever affairs with two strong metal initials that slip into a groove in the frame of the bag. In a variety of styles, including the popular "softie" type—in fine leathers and smart colors.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

Marvella Pearls*

$1.00

The lovely necklaces so appropriate for Easter wear . . . long, single strands of these beautiful, lustrous graduated pearls*—at small cost!

16, 18, and 20-inch strands—with dainty filigree clasps . . . in satin-lined boxes, for Easter gift-giving.

Two Definite Reasons Why

Unfurred Coats

Are Favorites This Spring

The two models pictured, which our Women's Coat Section recently brought out, have immediately won favor with those particular women who had asked us for something to take the place of fine fur-trimmed coats.

They consider that the trimming, deftly worked out of the coat fabric, is about as flattering as fur, and much more original, of course; and being hand-done, it has an intrinsic element which makes it uncopiable.

The beauty of the fabrics are in the same key, fine new weaves in Corsair blue, navy, dawn blue, gray and shingle . . . Regular sizes 34 to 44, and half sizes 33½ to 45½.

For Girls

Easter Coats, $10.95

Sports coats of 100% pure Camel's-hair, silk-lined . . . tweeds, dressy coats of so many good-looking new novelty woolens in a variety of styles, with distinctive sleeves, scarfs, capes, and everything! Sizes 8 to 16 years.

Silk Dresses, $3.95

Fine quality silk crepes in spring prints and plain colors . . . in Saturday-Sunday types, with cape collars, cape shoulders, etc. Dresses that usually cost dollars more! Gay spring colors; sizes 8 to 16 years.

Hats, $1.95 and $2.95

Every smart, new style, and new straw, and color included in two specially priced groups. Little girls' brim styles—high school girls' sophisticated styles, of milans, baku, novelty straws and braids.

Babies' Coat Sets, $2.95

Fine, lovely wool flannels in double-breasted effects, with cleverly seamed sleeves, notched collars, etc. Berets to match. Pink, blue, cream, maize. 1 to 3 yrs.

Tots' Coat Sets, $2.95

Popular regulation outfits, of a fine quality navy cheviot—amply cut and well-made—trimmed with sleeve emblems, and everything! With matching berets. Sizes 2 to 6 years.

For Boys

"Prep" Suits, $10.85

High quality materials, careful tailoring, fine fit, long service . . . they're the recommendations for these good-looking long-trouser suits of smart brown, oxford gray, blue, and navy woolens. Sizes 15 to 20 years.

Knicker Suits, $10

Dress-up navy blue cheviots . . . the popular "New Idea" suits with sweaters instead of vests . . . suits of excellent, sturdy, high-priced woolen. Sizes 8 to 18 years.

Hats, $2.00

Shoes

Growing Girls' Shoes—school, sports, and dress-up styles; slippers, oxford ties of calf, patent leather, pigskin, reptiles. Sizes 3½ to 8, at $3.95 and $5.00.

Children's Socks, 5 Prs. 95c

Hundreds of pairs of brand new spring socks . . . the qualities that sell right along at a higher price—offered in an Easter Special! Anklets and half-socks of fine lisle—in stripes, fancy tops, all-over patterns.

. . . Children's Floor, Third . . .

Embroidered

Organdie Blouses

$2.00

Tiny red, or blue, or white flowers and eyelets embroidered on crisp white organdie . . . the newest "darling" among blouses to wear with spring suits, or jumpers! Demure puffed sleeve styles—with collar and bow trim edged with organdie ruffles.

Other charming cottons, and smart new silks—for all types of suits—also $2.00.

. . . Neckwear, Main Floor . . .

To Be Worn Separately, or to Form a Chic Ensemble

Coat and Dress

Both for $16.75

The Misses' Shop brings out this slick idea—a costume with unlined, lightweight wool coat and print crepe frock that form a suit for Easter parading; and which give one a separate coat and an extra frock, when one wants to split them. In beige, gray or navy blue.

Another model with long coat in cape style, unfurred. And a third one, with a swagger-length coat worn open to show a border print facing of silk that matches the frock beneath.

Swagger Jacket Frocks

A misses' striking model of sheer crepe, in summer navy or brown, with coat in knee length, and the frock topped with a yoke and crisp chin bow of bold plaid organza. $16.75.

An Unrivalled Easter Showing of

Men's Interwoven Socks

35c, 50c and $1.00 Pair

Ready for choosing tomorrow in this complete Store for Men—the city's largest collection of these socks—famous for their snug fit and long wear.

Reproductions of fine imported lisle, adaptations of higher priced domestic socks are making Interwoven style-famous. Checks, all-over figures, stripes, Glen plaids, marle effects, and plain colors in the accordian-like 6x3 rib—in lisle, and silk-and-celanese. Choose the socks that will ensemble with every spring and Easter outfit.

SUBSCRIPTIONS ASKED BY COX

In his regular Tuesday radio broadcast over Station WJAS from the pulpit of Old St. Patrick's yesterday, Father Cox told his listeners that he would more gratefully appreciate the annual Easter greetings if his friends this year would send him subscriptions for the Sun-Telegraph in place of the deluge of holiday cards, cigars and candy that he usually gets. These subscriptions, he explained, are more tangible because for every one that comes in he gets a cash commission to carry on his unemployment relief work. And his plea was not in vain. The radio audience immediately responded by telephone and telegraph.

Last week Father Cox broke all records in this subscription drive and he is making an endeavor this week to smash last week's figures. The Sun-Telegraph gave him a check for $112.05 for the week ending Saturday, which is a total of approximately $1,600 on this campaign.

Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox receive credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

Barber Tools Need Of 'Overall Army'

BALTIMORE, April 12.—(AP.)—Barbering equipment, as well as reading matter, is among the prime needs at the civilian conservation camps.

The Third Corps Area headquarters said three barbers were among the Baltimore contingent at Fort Humphreys, Va., but they had nothing with which to cut hair, while their companions were learning to cut brush.

Mayor Keeps Two Jobs By Court Rule

FARRELL, Pa., April 12.—The Pennsylvania Supreme Court has handed down a decision upholding the right of Mayor J. A. Franek to serve both as Mayor and Alderman of the city. The action was an appeal brought by Julius Scheimer, elected an Alderman when Farrell became a city 18 months ago. Franek, a Justice of the Peace in the borough, refused to give up the office.

Kiwanis to Elect Delegates Thursday

Election of delegates to the national convention in Los Angeles is scheduled tomorrow at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club of Pittsburg in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Delegates nominated include: President Ed Klimet and Thomas F. Ashford III; alternates, Harold B. Smith and Clay D. Manville. An Easter program will be held with a musical presentation.

Officers Elected By Traveling Men

At the annual meeting of Post AA, Travelers Protective Association of America, the following officers were elected: Herman Fineberg, president; Harry J. Austin, vice president, and Stewart A. Shannon, secretary-treasurer. Cecil Rudin, Harry Kwall, Owen J. Cleary and Russell M. Mitchell were elected directors.

The proposal of the national office canceling state and national conventions this year was adopted.

Students Reveal Aims for Saving

A banking questionnaire recently given to Allegheny High School students shows they have many reasons for saving money. Results of the questionnaire, announced today, show that the students save to go to college, for their high school expenses and vacations, to help their class banking records and to form the habit of saving.

ENGINEERS SEE LATEST AIR PURIFIER

The latest in air conditioning apparatus was on exhibition last night in the William Penn Hotel ballroom for the meeting on the subject, sponsored jointly by the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania.

That the return of beer would aid sales of the new equipment was predicted by Charles D. Graham, air conditioning engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, who said the nation was facing a period of intensified social activity.

He said the equipment artificially reconditions air to proper temperature and is sensitive to the presence of groups of people. It cleans and recirculated the air and controls humidity, he said.

The meeting was also addressed by W. C. Goodwin, division engineer of air conditioning equipment of the Westinghouse Company. He declared the equipment maintained temperature in summer between 64 and 79 degrees, controled humidity and circulated air movement at the rate of 15-25 feet a minute.

The equipment on exhibition was manufactured here and included models for restaurants, shops, store windows and similar applications.

3 JAILED, LOSE CITIZENSHIP

Cancellation of their naturalization certificates and three months jail sentences were penalties imposed in Federal Court on three natives of Italy, when they pleaded guilty to charges of fraudulently obtaining American citizenship. Mauro Bucci, 50, who pleaded guilty to aiding them, also received a three months jail sentence.

The other men were Consiglio Pasquini, 30; Filippo D'Armelio, 39, and Domenico Crognale, 30, all of Weirton, W. Va., where they were employed in steel mills. Crognale was naturalized in 1931 and the others in 1928, in the Federal Court here.

In their applications for citizenship they claimed to reside at 80 Washington place and concealed the fact they lived in Weirton. At final naturalizations Bucci appeared as witnesses for the applicants.

4 Veteran Railways Employes Retiring

A total of 130 years continuous service brought retirement rewards to four employes of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The retirements, effective April 1, were given Francis McGuire, motorman, of 76 Park avenue, West View, 36 years service; William R. Amon, motorman, of 304 South School street, Avalon, 33 years service, and two conductors, Louis Kuhn, 1844 Center avenue, and T. R. Miller, 36 Mainsgate street, Ingram, each 34 years service.

the fish takes five years to grow ten inches long.

Scientific destruction of sharks and other worthless fish that destroy good fish may eventually cause oceans, lakes and rivers to be overcrowded. Earth's oceans could feed easily a thousand times the present human population of the world.

JULES PICCARD, father of Dr. Auguste Piccard, who went up ten miles into the stratosphere, higher above the earth than any human being had ever gone, is dead at the age of 93.

The aged and learned man, who has taught chemistry at the University of Basle for forty years, will be welcomed in Heaven because of his useful life and work. He will also be able to say to the other angels:

"My son, Auguste, came nearer to this place than anybody ever did, without coming all the way."

OF IMPORTANCE to newspaper publishers and owners of fir tree forests in the state of Washington is the news that fifteen-year-old fir trees can be used to make white newsprint paper. This will make possible a crop of firs every fifteen years, instead of every forty years, while preserving forests and their usefulness by scientific management.

The state of Georgia is interested in the manufacture of newsprint and other fine white paper from young pine trees, under scientific forestry.

Light Opera Classics On Air

Light opera, with its recently renewed appeal to the broadcasters, scores another hit with the inauguration of a new weekly series under the direction of Chandon Collinge on WJAS at 8 o'clock tonight.

The series, to include radio versions of the works of Suppe, Herbert, Planquette and others, opens with one of the most famous of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, "The Gondoliers." Supported by a full symphony orchestra, Rhoda Arnold, soprano; Roger Kinne, baritone; Theo Karle, tenor, and Crane Calder, bass, are the soloists.

Bach, Tchaikowsky and Grieg are represented on Frank Black's string symphonic presentation over NBC-WCAE from 9 to 9:30.

The second—and final—of Josef and Rosina Lhevinne's joint piano recitals, on the same station at 9:30, brings Mozart's Concerto in E-flat Major for two pianos. The assisting orchestra, conducted by Frank Black, offers a selection from Handel's "Fireworks" suite, composed for the fete which celebrated the Peace of Aix-la-Chapelle in 1748.

On WWSW at 9 p. m., the choir of St. John's Episcopal Church, with Mary Grime and Mildred Irvine, sopranos; Earl Sallade, baritone, and Don Sallade, tenor, as soloists, offers the Holy Week cantata, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace."

World Fair Talk

Speaking on "A World Fair in the Making," Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Century of Progress Exposition, discusses the plans and organization of the fair to open in Chicago June 1 on KDKA at 10:30. The broadcast is the first of a weekly series heralding the fair.

Simultaneously, the Jesters celebrate their third anniversary on the air and go on a new broadcasting schedule with their light patter and vocal harmonies on KDKA at 8:30 tonight.

Conrad Thibault, young operatic and concert baritone who has made numerous guest appearances during recent weeks, sings in that capacity with Donald Novis during the latter's weekly KDKA recital at 9:30.

The third of the new variety series, KD Kalendar of Stars, brings the KDKA Players in an original sketch entitled "Time Will Tell," and a vocal ensemble offering excerpts from "The Chocolate Soldier" to the microphone at 7:30.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen: "Tap-tap-tap."

The gravedigger freezes in his tracks and furtively glances around, fearing that from behind each tombstone a denizen of another world would leap out.

"Tap-tap-tap."

It's coming from the chapel. Blindly he starts to run. He flings himself exhausted outside the iron gates.

Such was the experience of an employe of a Pittsburgh cemetery whose imagination for the moment scattered his thoughts to the winds.

When he pulled himself together and sheepishly grinned at his own fright he went back to find that a wood pecker was imprisoned in the chapel.

Mrs. Laura C. Hickey, who corresponds from Waynesburg, informs the Globe Trotter that in a park near her home there is a white robin. It has a red breast and mates with the ordinary bird.

The Giants will be in Pittsburgh on May 25, 26 and 27, giving Harry Hayslip, of Toronto, O., formerly of Memphis, a chance to see his old pals, Bill Terry and Travis Jackson. Look for them at the Schenley Hotel.

Real use will be made of Eliza McGuire's New Brighton Homestead, a gift to the Sisters of Charity. It's just the place to take the foundling babies during the hot months of July and August. It will be a welcome relief from the crowded location at Bedford and Manilla streets.

Sister Felicitas will need porch furniture, stoves, rugs, anything that is suitable for the summer season. She will arrange to have it called for. Her telephone is Grant 1771.

The mention that Commodore Perry's flagship the Niagara, was soon to be floated brings a letter from Mrs. E. W. Glover, of Dover, O., whose family members were close friends of the Commodore's. Mrs. Glover cherishes a picture once owned by the great sailor.

Green B. Gibson, manager of the Fairfax Hotel, is proud to be host to the exhibit of the handiwork of the students of Berea College. Years ago in the Kentucky mountains he trudged many miles barefooted to this same school to gain his first glimmering of life outside the mountains.

Guy Lombardo, Cab Calloway Both Pittsburgh-bound; Cobb Gets Network Job

By AIRCASTER

This fair metropolis of ours is to be doubly honored next week.

Guy Lombardo, the Royal Canadians' guiding light, and Cab Calloway, that debonair prince of jazz, trip into town with their orchestras for one-night stands.

Cab, who packed the William Penn ballroom with his famous hy-de-ho rhythm the last time he visited Pittsburgh, will hold forth in the Syria Mosque ballroom Tuesday night, April 18.

Guy, who also will do his weekly chain broadcast with Burns and Allen through WJAS facilities while here, will play at the Anatole Club's Easter Ball at The Grotto, East Montgomery street, North Side, Wednesday night.

* * *

Stoopnocracy, that great brainchild of Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, is doing peachy, thank you. For within the last few days the Colonel and Budd have done a sequence on the new idea for their first feature talking picture, "International House," have made a one-reel talkie short entitled "Stoopnocracy" and have explained their new economic movement before a newsreel camera.

Another radio team about to flash on the silver screen is Amos 'n' Andy proprietors and operators of the Fresh Air Taxicab Company, Incorpolated.

Speaking of movies, the Rollickers had a time of it the other day when, due for a broadcast, the doorman didn't recognize them under a two days' growth of beard. Said he!

"Scram" No panhandlers allowed."

All because they were grooming themselves for a screen short to be billed, "Two Thousand Cheers in a Chain Gang." (Try to say that fast.)

As predicted here, during the Jack Pearl tour, the Whiteman orchestra will be aired with the Baron on Thursday night.

Irvin S. Cobb, the wit, is to be featured in their new commercial radio series sponsored by the Gulf Refining Company and broadcast over CBS-WJAS twice weekly beginning April 26.

Wamp Carlson, of the NBC Jesters, is now the proud "poppa" of a baby girl . . . and speaking of babies, Ralph Kirbery, the Dream Singer, is still looking for the first-born beer baby of Friday, April 7. He's going to award the parents an engraved silver mug.

A kindly gentleman of Oklahoma, who never saw Johnny Marvin, but who admired him, has just passed away and bequeathed to the lonesome singer a herd of cattle, two saddle horses, saddles, a stable and a prize cow . . . Ralph Kirbery, the Dream Singer, is very likely to be called into a Sunday evening commercial presentation . . . Frank Black, the NBC musical director, predicts an era of half-hour programs, and the gradual disappearance of the 15-minute shows, and anticipates a big improvement thereby in entertainment.

Baseball Season Greeted by Seals

Marking the opening of the big league baseball season, the Trained Seals go on the air at 6:40 tonight over WCAE with a gala all-star presentation.

Something More than Beer is back

Beer is back! In those three simple words a great American industry goes back to work. Hands long idle find new jobs. Faces empty of hope brighten to a new promise. Thousands upon thousands find honorable livelihood. A vast American market—a new frontier of industry reopens,—bringing sorely needed business to farmers, transportation and to hundreds of other industries. And with it, a new fountain head of tax revenue arises to add its dollars gladly to a nation in need.

Beer is back! But is that all? No! To cheer, to quicken American life with hospitality of old, the friendly glass of good-fellowship is back. Sociability and good living return to their own, once more to mingle with memories and sentiments of yesterday. America looks forward —and feels better.... Beer is back! Yes! But much more than that. Beer at its best is back—the brew that everybody knew best—the king of bottled beers that outsold any other bottled beer on earth.

DRIVING TO SEE BABY, MAN HURT

Anthony Hanzel, 34, of 615 Avery street, truck driver, was in a serious condition today in Allegheny General Hospital, an auto crash victim. He suffered a probable fractured back, and two other persons were injured in an automobile collision last night in Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, police reported.

Police said Hanzel was thrown from the truck when it collided with the machine of W. C. Snyder, of 700 Locust street, Sewickley, at Washington road and Beverly Heights.

Snyder, en route to a Wheeling (W. Va.) hospital to see his wife, who gave birth to a baby last Monday, suffered probable fractured ribs, according to Dr. J. M. Johnston, of Mt. Lebanon. Maurice Friend, a helper, was cut on the head, police said.

This was easy. Did you solve it? The answer was:

"True worth is in being not seeming."

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor.

Here's one that should stop you for a while. You may have to see the tip in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph. It's Cipher No. 83, submitted by Dan Hugan, of East Liberty. Don't think this easy. It's plenty tough and should cause you a bit of worry. Well, go to it. See if you can decode it the first night. If you do, you are quite a decoder.

Did you finish Cipher No. 82? It was in between a hard and easy cipher. With the tip it should have been easy. Here's how it was done.

The reverse alphabet was used with "A" being "26," and "Z"—one. The next step was to multiply the numbers of the alphabet by the fraction "three and one-half." That gave you the key as printed in today's Sun-Telegraph. Check over the key and see if you had any mistakes.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Muscular Aches Are Confusing

Dr. Copeland

Most persons have heard a lot about rheumatism. Either they have suffered from the disease or know of others who are chronic sufferers. Although tremendous strides have been made in the treatment of rheumatism, the disease still continues to be a great menace to health. It is a menace because of the serious complications that result from the ailment.

The word "rheumatism" is greatly abused, misunderstood and misapplied. It is commonly used to describe symptoms which are really caused by neuritis, arthritis, neuralgia and other afflictions of muscles and joints.

It is a disease which afflicts children as well as adults. In children it is often confused with so-called "growing pains."

In one form the disease is known as "acute rheumatic fever." The sufferer has a high fever, sweats freely and complains of severe pain in the joints. This may be so severe that the slightest vibration or movement produces excruciating suffering.

Victims of this disease should remain in bed until all symptoms and fever disappear. The inflamed joints should be fixed in a comfortable position. This can be done with pillows or by wrapping the joint firmly in layers of cotton batting, or by a well-fitted padded splint of wood, or light plaster.

The diet should be simple and contain sufficient calories to prevent any loss of weight. Fluids should be taken freely to replace the fluid lost by excessive sweating.

Internal medicine for the relief of pain and fever must be prescribed by the physician. The pain should be controlled so that the sufferer may obtain rest. Restful sleep lessens the pain and gives the sufferer strength to overcome his siege of illness.

Children afflicted with this disease should remain in bed for a period of two or three months after the acute signs have disappeared. Involvement of the heart is a common complication of acute rheumatic fever in children. Complete rest in bed minimizes this danger. Though it is difficult to keep a child in bed for this length of time, I strongly recommend that this plan be followed if possible.

Every effort should be made to remove all centers of infection. Infected tonsils, infected teeth, sinuses and other foci of infection within the body, tend to prolong or to bring about a recurrence of this disease. Diseased tonsils and teeth should never be removed during the acute attack. It is best to wait until the acute symptoms of the disease have subsided.

Avoid damp places and exposure to cold and wet. The sufferer from rheumatism benefits by plenty of fresh air, sunshine and good food. Rheumatic fever is almost unknown in tropical and sub-tropical climates. Of course, southern weather is ideal for the victims of this disease.

Recently experimental work has been conducted with vaccines. These are made from bacteria taken from the throats of patients with acute rheumatic fever and those convalescing from the disease. The vaccine is injected into the tissues of the sufferer. The results have been gratifying in a few cases. It is hoped that the vaccine will be perfected and a reliable cure discovered for this painful and dreaded affliction.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Man About Town

All concerned will holler "Uncle!" yet the Prince Lichtensteins of Austria (he's here) are having it melted there . . . His local heart is a dear, named Ina Claire, the star . . . The ill-fated Akron was 19,161 lbs., overweight and 3 miles per hour underspeed . . . Mark Hellinger, one of the grander guys, returns from his World tour about June 1 . . . Oh, Gladys Glad! Do we all have to buy wedding presents again? . . . Alexander Woollcott evens matters with the columnists in the May (current) Cosmopolitan magazine. Those who really know us—wont' believe a word of it.

Somebody crossed the Paradise on "arranging" for Tallulah Bankhead's appearance there . . . Apologies were swapped. The star wasn't asked, and the Paradise, which has good manners, "regrets exceedingly," etc. . . . Gregg Tolan, the Hollywood cameraman, and Edna Callahan, his 4-weeks' bride, have parted already, and Nancy Lyons, who was jilted, is tittering too loud . . . "42nd St.," the melody, is too much like "Puttin' On the Ritz" to rate a tumble . . . Adrienne Allen, whose marriage tag escapes us for the moment, anticipates a blessed expense in London . . . Louis Ruppel, one of the better reporters, is now Deputy Narcotic Commissioner.

Peter Stuyvestant's vault (he was the first governor of Nieuw Amsterdam, you dopes!) is to be disturbed, if the new Museum of the City of New York has its way . . . The vault is under the St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie Church . . . The museum wants Pete's silver shaft, which you thought was wood—for it's major exhibit! . . . Stuyvestant's remaining kinsfolk (two old maids) are appalled and consider it a sacrilege . . . It would, however, settle the long-time argument over which of his stems was phony . . . Add predictions: That Gordon & Revel's next smash hit will be a lovely tune tagged "It Was a Night in June," very beautiful—and their first torch, too! . . . Peggy Fears' groom, Blumey, who certainly hasn't "got Rhythm," is now Beth Leary's shadow.

Scallions to the sensitive, who column about locals "who can't take it," and then pout when they are given a dose of their own petty palava. Scallions to any "Ha-Ha Club" patron who even breathes when The 3 Roberts are on. Their delightful bass viol, violin and tenor-guitar soft rhythms are the most refreshing breezes in town. Scallions to Magistrate Murphy for fining a starving artist named Paul Rahm $2 or 2 Days—because the hungry man drew a picture of the Akron with chalk on a pavement—and got some needed coins from passersby. Hisss!

As Thomajan, a gagazine write, would say: "The idea is to ring the bell—without cracking it." . . . One wag wonders why nobody has called him "Precedent Roosevelt." . . . Morton Skeedmore asserts: "Nothing incites the egoist to fury like indifference." . . . Then why does Skeedmore send these anons? . . . Joan Lowell explains the "wait" at Gravesend Bay. She says the compass went phooey—and it's against the law to proceed. Veriwell, dear.

The kin of the late Patrick Kearney, of Detroit, didn't know of his plight, which was presumed, of course. They are distressed at the thought that neighbors may not understand. And so this. . . . Romano (Nino) Romani, who was Rosa Ponselle's ex, and Edith Alexander, the noted throat specialist's daughter, are having the bells tuned . . . Gloria Grafton is veddy, veddy vonderful at the Embassy . . . The Club Richman was the first Broadway night club to collapse with the return of lager.

Peggy Healy, of the Paul Whiteman crew, and Al Darby, of the same outphffft, have phffft! . . . Doris Robbins, the blues-shooer, and Ben Pollock, the tempo titan, probably will be welded by the time you get to the next line . . . Arthur Johnson has replaced Don Dilloway, the movie actor, in Winona Love's heart—and Johnson's former fancy, Loretta Sayres, is here writing sad poems. . . . Don Alvardo's explanation is that he is trying to reconcile Cy Bartlett with Alice White. Don tells the west coasters he expects Marilyn Miller there soon—and that they long-distance nightly.

This dep't simply has to quit sparring with chumps. Nobody believes it's on the level—since the Bernie "war" was exposed. Shucks! . . . Joan Abbott, unemployed, who could have had a job at the Paramount, never showed up! . . . Bernie pays his musicians $10 each extra—just for the privilege of cussing at 'em when he's burned up . . . The Edwards (stage director) Saulpaugh's of "Cat 'n' Fiddle" and other musical comedy hits (she was Mary Kayhart), are melting. . . . Upton Sinclair is disappointed at the sales of his William Fox "exposure." . . . Max Reinhardt was trans-atlantalking last week to come here and do a Roxy . . . When Eddie Cantor gets amazed his eyes go from oo to OO . . . George Bernard Shaw is modly in love with—G. B. S.! Izzy Elinson says: "What a week for the kiddies—the Circus and Shaw are both in town! . . . Can you imagine what the beer is going to taste like after all those politicians have had a finger in it? . . . Let's hope that the beer will put America back on its feet, without taking too many Americans off theirs."

Wise-Cracks Now Love Speech

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, April 12.—Newest Hollywood rage is wise-cracking love scenes. Mae West showed the way and now Paramount is featuring the same kind of romance in "Her Bodyguard," a new picture that will co-star Edmund Lowe and Wynne Gibson.

Wynne Gibson

This story, an adaptation of Corey Ford's "Nine Points of the Law," will tell the adventures of a Broadway butterfly, who hires a hard-boiled wise-guy to escort her around and guard her jewels.

The give and take of brittle, up-to-the-minute repartee will be an outstanding point in the treatment.

"Her Bodyguard" replaces "On Probation," which was withdrawn, says Paramount, because of an epidemic of stories with prison backgrounds. Other sources attributed the change to recent agitation for even stricter parole regulations.

At any rate, William Baudine starts the substitute film within the next two weeks. It's a B. P. Schulberg production.

* * *

Buddy De Sylva gave a beer party to the Westside Asthma Club and told the funniest story of the evening.

A fellow and his wife got into a terrific quarrel. Finally, she blew up.

"Well, I've been going out with other men. And what do you think of that?"

"Vas it Solomon?" he shouted.

The wife shook her head.

"Vas it Isaacs?"

She shook her head again. In rapid succession, the husband mentioned several other names. At last, in a purple rage, he drew himself up.

"So," he shouted, "My friends are not good enough for you!"

* * *

They're all talking about that Little Club party. Never saw so many stars in one dance place before. Carole Lombard and Bill Powell gave a party that took up almost one end of the room, Gloria Swanson and Michael Farmer arrived late but the Clark Gables were even later, Kay Francis and Ken Mackenna, the Zeppo Markes, Jessica and Dick Barthelmess (Lucky people, they're going to Mexico City in a week), and Clive Brooks (and Clive isn't half as dignified as you think) and many other famous ones were guests of Carole and Bill.

Miss Lombard

Almost every table had its celebrities. Both Joan and Barbara Bennett were there. The Bob Leonards and the Edmund Gouldings were together. Alleen Pringle was with the Townsend Netchers (Constance Talmadge). Boots Mallory was out with Si Bartlett again. Jobyna Ralston and Dick Arlen gave a party. Marie Prevost and Buster Collier danced constantly. Colleen Moore and husband, Al Scott, were there. Maureen O'Sullivan and John Farrow seemed devoted. Ruth Selwyn put on a Salvation Army lass's hat and took up a collection. The Sidney Lanfields (Shirley Mason) entertained Viola Dana and her golf-ace husband. There were dozens of others.

Miss O'Sullivan

The only RKO writer who was able to get along with Ely S. Culbertson has been left by his wife . . . Margaret Ettinger, one of Hollywood's most popular publicity girls, and Ross Shattuck, the artist, will be married Saturday afternoon in the home of Louella O. Parsons . . . Mrs. Sam Coslow had to postpone her trip to New York, because of an automobile accident, but Dr. Frank Nolan says her injuries are not serious . . . There's real excitement about the approaching tennis doubles tournament at Paramount. Buster Crabbe and Dick Arlen are teamed, so are Frederic Marsh and John Lodge. Most people concede that Karl Struss, the cameraman, is the best player on the lot. He is the man who photographed "Sunrise" for the late F. W. Murnau and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" for Rouben Mamoulian.

Frieda Inescourt, who plays the leading role in "When Ladies Meet," the Rachel Crother's comedy coming to the Nixon as the Easter week attraction, was last seen here as Portia in the George Arliss production of "The Merchant of Venice." She is English-born, daughter of an actress, who came to America, not to work on the stage, but in the British consulate in New York. In fact, she never was on the stage until she grew tired of an editorial job she had in New York and fibbed herself into a Winthrop Ames production, saying she had understudied her mother. "When Ladies Meet" will be the fifth subscription play of the American Theater Society and seats for it will be on sale in the box office tomorrow.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

EN ROUTE FROM AGRA TO CALCUTTA, India: A hectic day today. I could have gone right from Bombay to Calcutta on the same train. But no. Smart guy Hellinger wanted to see the Taj Mahal, which is off the regular route. I saw it all right, but I had to change trains three times—and I'm now writing this in the dining car of the third train.

I arrived at Agra at 4 o'clock this afternoon after another day's traveling on the world's dullest and dustiest railroad. After yesterday's terrific heat I was totally unprepared for the cold night that had followed. It seemed to me that it was almost freezing. The bed was more of a bench than anything else. The train rattled, bounced, swayed, jerked and moaned.

Because I was so cold, I put a shirt on over my pajamas. Then the mosquitoes got at my legs, so I put on a pair of pants. It grew still colder, and, before I knew it, I had everything piled on me but my luggage. Around 5:30 in the morning I finally dozed off.

Promptly at 6 o'clock, when the train jerked its way to a stop at some God-forsaken station, my compartment door opened with a bang. There stood Mohamed Smel, my bearer, with a pot of tea and a green banana.

Now I know that it's the custom to go for that semi-breakfast at that hour in India, but if there was anything in the world I didn't want at that particular moment, it was a pot of tea and a green banana. I tossed Mohamed out as swiftly as he had entered.

I tried to sleep again, but now it was growing warmer, so I took off my shirt. It grew still warmer, so I took off the trousers. It began to get hot as blazes, so I removed the top of my pajamas. In a short time I was completely naked, the dust was piling in again—and it was time to get up for breakfast.

Oh, well . . .

At Agra, where the Taj Mahal is located, I had only two hours before my train pulled out for the junction where I would change again and catch the express for Calcutta. I left Mohamed Smel to take care of the baggage—he had hired five coolies to handle four pieces of baggage—and walked from the station.

Outside it dawned upon me suddenly that the gateman had not collected my ticket. As a matter of fact, nobody had asked me about a ticket of any kind either before or during the long journey. I walked back to the gateman and handed him my little book that contained all the tickets.

He took the little book and looked dubiously at the various tickets. Then he nodded, and put the entire works in his pocket.

"Thank you master," he said. "Thank you."

"Just a minute," I cried. "My tickets to Calcutta are still in there. Just take out the tickets that you need."

He reached into his pocket and returned the little book intact. He made no move to tear out his tickets.

"Thank you, master," he said. "Thank you."

I looked at him, and walked from the station. This time I didn't go back. What a system! . . .

I regret that I am unable to describe the Taj Mahal to you. One of the seven wonders of the modern world, it was built some 300 years ago by the Mohammedan Emperor Shah Jahan as a tomb for his queen and only wife. My words are too poor to convey even a semi-adequate picture, so I would rather not attempt it at all.

Sufficient to relate that this magnificent monument is the very peak of man's achievement in that direction. In the cutting and assembling of white marble it is Utopia. In its perfection is the love story of the ages—and in its grandeur is the heartbreak of death.

Before I left on this trip I asked a man who had visited the Taj Mahal the year previous to describe it to me.

"I can't," was his simple reply. "I don't think anybody can. It's too beautiful for that, really. I might try—but the mental picture I would give you would be so far away from the truth that it would be something in the nature of a sacrilege.

"All I can tell you is that, when I stood across from the tomb and looked upon its beauty for the first time, I wanted to cry. That's all."

Now that I've seen it, I know that he told the whole story in those very few words . . .

Returning to the station at Agra, although it was at least 15 minutes before departure, I found that the small train was already pretty well filled. Since I was to ride on it only for an hour, I didn't care where they put me. But my bearer had been on the job, and he had a huge room for four or six fairly covered with my baggage and books. That, of course, was to discourage any other passenger who might want to ride with me.

Five minutes passed, and the crowd grew larger and larger. The door opened suddenly, and in came a very tall, middle-aged lady with an English accent that was just too bad.

"I say," she cried. "Whatever are you doing here?"

I saw no reason why she should have been so startled. I haven't reached the Frankenstein stage just yet.

"Traveling," I replied. "I'm traveling through India and I sometimes get on trains. This looked like a nice train and I—"

"I know, I know," she interrupted nervously. "But do you think you should be here? I never heard of such a thing. They always provide me with quarters alone. Why, the train will leave and we will be positively alone. A man and a woman!"

"I wouldn't worry about it, madame," I said calmly. "I assure you I'm perfectly harmless. Of course, I sometimes take a notion to shoot out light, especially in trains. If that happens, just cook me an opium pill and I'm all right again in short order. I—"

I stopped abruptly because I thought she was going to faint. She was clutching at her heart and biting nervously at her lower lip. I stood up and spoke reassuringly.

"I'm only kidding, madame," I asserted. "I'm really not as bad as I sound. If you wish me to, I'll be only too happy to move into another compartment. It's only a short ride, but if you'd feel uncomfortable with me here—I'll be glad to move."

"I think it's best that you go," she cried sharply. "I really do. I have a slight headache now and I fancy I might nap a bit. More, there was no reason why you should have been here in the first place. Imagine putting a man and a woman in the same compartment!"

I didn't tell the lady that none of these compartments were reserved and that, if she had been alone on her journey thus far, she had been pretty lucky. No use worrying her too much. So I summoned my bearer, had my luggage shifted hastily to the next compartment and settled myself among five other people.

Just before reaching the junction to change for the Calcutta train, the train stopped. I stepped out for a bit of air—and I looked in at the compartment I had vacated for the old, English girl. I looked—and I let out a howl of laughter.

There being no other space on the train, there were now five Indian men in her compartment. And how miserable she looked! . . .

RALLY AGAINST INCINERATOR

Protests of Homestead taxpayers against the plan to erect garbage incinerator in the center of the school and church district will be voiced tonight at a meeting in the Hays Building, Eighth avenue and McClure street.

Council is asking bids on erection of the plant. An injunction obtained by the Taxpayers' Association was dismissed some time ago when it was believed the question had been settled. The Rev. C. J. Hitanek, of St. Anne's Catholic Church, will speak.

BAKER BOOSTS FOREIGN TRADE

Delegates to the Twentieth National Foreign Trade Convention were assured a hearty welcome in Pittsburgh by Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, speaking over KDKA last night.

Urging international co-operation on world problems he said:

"In arriving at its present high position, foreign trade has been an important factor in the growth of the United States. If we are to hold our position, foreign trade must occupy the attention not only of our great men of affairs, but of all our people, for its advancement affects the welfare of every class of society."

The convention will be held April 26-28.

Waters Shows Grasp Of Fiscal Affairs
By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 12.—Auditor General Charles A. Waters, who, on May 1, will move across a first floor corridor of the Capitol to be become State Treasurer as successor to Gen. Edward Martin, is a young man of quiet demeanor.

Mr. Shields

He is not given to frequent statements on affairs of government. He comports himself in a reserved manner and does not hunt the spot light. Indeed, his retiring disposition has given to many people through the commonwealth the idea the Auditor General is a somewhat forceless and negative character, and has no broad conception of the fiscal affairs coming under his supervision.

Nothing could be farther from the truth.

And if there is any hope of compromise at all between the Governor and contending factions on unemployment relief it will be principally because of Mr. Waters.

Indeed, the fact that there can be an emergency relief bill passed before the state emergency relief board runs out of funds on Saturday is almost solely due to the logical reasoning and exposition of the situation by Mr. Waters in the conference which occurred Monday afternoon in the Governor's office.

All of the legislative leaders—or theoretical leaders—were there. So were members of the Governor's cabinet and other state officials. There was an atmosphere of tension and contention. There was grave danger that the meeting would break up with not even a tentative agreement.

* * *

Thinks of Simple Way of Cutting Knot

Whereupon Mr. Waters, who through his position is also a member of the relief board, in effect dared the conferees to quit without providing for the present emergency. It was he who showed those assembled that the Talbot bill, near final passage, could be amended so passage could be had almost at once. Another bill could be started for the next biennium, he said.

No one seemed to have thought of that simple way of cutting the knot, and all had been wondering how in four days they could pass a measure which requires at least five days for consideration under legislative procedure.

It was Mr. Waters also who pointed out that there was a budget surplus for this year which would serve as the money for the emergency appropriation. Negotiations between the contending factions over future revenue could come later, he explained, that there was no sense in quarreling over emergency funds when the money was available.

An organization man, Mr. Waters played no favorites in his attitude. He, as well as many other present, was perturbed at the extensive scope of relief, and the doubt as to how many months the need will exist. But he could lay aside foggy discussion growing out of that perturbation to state succinctly that whatever any one might think about the treasury drain of relief funds, there was an emergency at hand on this day and date, and theorizing was out of the window.

Perhaps, except for rather fumbling attempts such as this to do justice to the clear and forcible thinking and action of Mr. Waters, he will not get much credit for grappling with the emergency. He will not be out with any public statements saying what he has done. He will not be rushing to print attacking this one or that one, and defending his own position.

* * *

Not a Seeker Of Limelight

He stated it simply and in the words of the crap shooters, "let it ride."

The fact remains the needy people who are getting relief after Saturday, without interruption, should devote a large portion of their appreciation to Mr. Waters.

To show how little he seeks the limelight, an incident of yesterday can be cited.

There was another conference late in the afternoon of the same group which met Monday. Mr. Waters did not attend. He said it was not necessary. He cited the agreement which had been reached the previous day to find $10,000,000. He had shown where it was.

Later, he said, if suggestions were needed as to how additional money for relief needs after June 1 could be raised, he would be glad to present his ideas.

Perhaps some of those in the conference, legislators who do not come in frequent contact with him, were surprised at the broad grasp he had of the fiscal affairs.

They should not have been had they read the speeches he delivered during the last campaign, or had they been present at a conference he had with newspapermen last week at which he discussed state finances in terms of relief.

In the campaign Waters pointed out that economy was imperative, but could be accomplished in dangerous ways. And he issued one warning which should be taken home to all taxpayers and voters.

That when times get good again they exercise some check over public spending which can be authorized by a vote of the electors, and not imposed by administrative or legislative bodies. No taxpayers should understand this better than those in Allegheny County, paying more than 60 cents on each tax dollar for improvements they themselves authorized in peoples' bond issues at a time when the whole country was on a prosperity spree.

United States Takes Active Part in Brief War Against Japan

Gabriel Over the White House

(Continuation of Chapter X.)

After several months' training in smaller cities, my full company was ordered to Illinois to attack the remnants of Chicago's underworld.

The night of my arrival found me in close conference with Chicago's new chief of police, Joseph Perlman. I was accompanied by Lieut. Brody, my second in command, and the purpose of our talk was to map out a plan of campaign.

Asserting my authority, I ultimately convinced them that the only way to deal a decisive blow at the whole underworld organization was to get the leaders first.

It was agreed to start operations next day at 3 a. m. About 30 of the recognized leading racketeers were to be arrested on warrants charging possesssion of fire arms.

The operation was largely successful. The element of surprise and the speed with which each raid was carried out upset the precautions taken by the gang leaders so that before most of them fully realized what was happening they were behind the bars. Five Green Jackets were shot, but none killed.

The simplest capture was that of the Brothers Borelli.

But our satisfaction was incomplete because we had failed to get "Wolf" Miller. Three others had similarly not been located. In the course of the day we obtained fairly definite information as to their whereabouts, and I detailed men to take up their trail. Within a week two had been arrested in New Orleans and Denver, and the third was shot while resisting capture in his roadster near Buffalo.

Rendezvous Bombed

Borelli, his nerve shattered by his imprisonment, his fears accentuated by the absence of any specific charge and his mind distraught by mental pictures of Ellis Island or the penal battalions, had been promised freedom by Perlman if he would talk. He did—nobody was spared—rival bootleggers, members of his old gang, relatives, even his own brother. But what was more important, he disclosed the secret hide-out of "Wolf" Miller.

"Wolf" Miller's retreat was a large house on the outskirts of Cicero. It was one of a chain of brothels and gambling places he had once controlled. They had been closed by the police and were generally supposed to be unoccupied. The house was surrounded by thick bushes and undergrowth, deliberately cultivated to ensure privacy in the old days.

It was impossible to approach it by armored cars except along the main drive across which had been dug four deep wide trenches. Even an army tank would have found the drive difficult going. One of my scouts reported that all the upper windows had been boarded and loopholed while those below were protected by iron bars and sandbags. The tear-gas grenades of the city police would be of little use.

I secured three bombing planes from Washington and after seven direct hits the house, a strong built brick edifice with thick walls and floors, was a melancholy wreck. The roof was a tangled mass of broken beams. The right-hand corner, sliced off, had subsided into a heap of rubble. Three bedrooms, the furniture broken and scattered, seemed to be almost indecently exposed by the collapse of the wall.

Still there was no sign of "Wolf" Miller or his men. I radioed the planes to return and reload for a second attack. While they were away, a thin coil of smoke began arching above one of the rear bedrooms. As we watched, it grew more noticeable. In a few minutes it was apparent that the whole place was ablaze. A white cloth was poked out of one of the loopholes in a downstairs window. Miller's fortress had fallen.

Fail to Get Miller

I turned to survey our prisoners—six men and one woman. Four of the men were wounded and all bore the grime of their battle with fire and smoke.

I looked around for Miller and realized with bitter disappointment that he was not there. None of his men knew what had become of him, nor of his companion, "Golden Mary" Rosenbaum.

* * *

The crushing of the most active elements among the gangsters and gunmen in New York and Chicago virtually ended my active service with the Green Jackets.

It was with a sigh that I climbed into the plane that was to bear me back to the dull routine of office work in Washington. It was good to know that none of my company was killed and that the wounded were all off the danger list. I had no regrets, no compunctions about the fate of the beasts of prey we had destroyed. No regret but one—that "Wolf" Miller had apparently slipped beyond our reach.

* * *

A month later I had been promoted to Second-in-command of the Corps. One morning, while reporting to Col. Hazlett for some special duty, I found Peale in the Chief's office. He had come to present certificates of conspicuous merit to two Green Jackets of "A" Company.

Col. Hazlett read the official record of their exploit, which consisted of tracking down and arresting, in a wild section of the Rockies, one of New York's most notorious killers, who that morning had been executed at Ellis Island.

Telltale Scar

After the formal presentation of the certificates, to put the men at their ease, Peale asked them: "How did you manage to locate your man each time, in spite of his many clever disguises?"

One of the pair laughed: "It was dead easy, sir. Whatever he did to himself he always forgot one thing."

Peale smiled as he asked, "And what was that?"

"Well, sir, it was a thin scar which ran from below his left eye down to his lip. It was very faint, but, if you looked for it, quite unmistakable. It was a mark that looked as if it had

Woman Dies; Ill Since Auto Injury

Mrs. Josephine Blackburn, 30, of 3889 Bigelow boulevard, died last night in Homeopathic Hospital from pneumonia and spinal meningitis that developed from injuries suffered when she was struck by an automobile at Center avenue and Craig street, March 28.

Joseph Walsh, of 191 Shetland avenue, said by police to have been the driver, was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office today.

Predicts Permanent Registration Law

Predicting the passage of state legislation providing permanent registration, Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, president of the Pennsylvania Conference on Election Laws, last night addressed the Ingram Board of Trade.

He said permanent registration and the use of the voting machine "would curb 85 per cent of election fraud."

'STEAM ROLLER' RULES ARTIST ELECTION
Petrovits 'Out in Cold' As Tech Teacher Leads 'Rebels'

Pittsburgh's daubers — professional and amateur members of the Associated Artists — today owed a debt of thanks to Ralph Bowman, radio salesman accused of exhibiting copies.

Or maybe it was to Louise Pershing, who levelled the accusing finger, to whom thanks were due.

Anyhow, somebody should thank somebody else for starting the hubub and furore centering around the association's exhibition this year because it doubled receipts from sales of pictures and sent the attendance up 2,000.

ACCUSER SUFFERS

Nobody, of course, would think of thanking Milan Petrovits, who insisted that action should be taken against Bowman and who said what he thought about a jury that pinned a water color prize on an oil painting and gave second prize to an alleged copy.

Petrovits was the only one to suffer, for that matter, from the whole affair.

At a meeting of the association in the Schenley Hotel, last night, a new political machine headed by Alexander J. Kostellow, Carnegie Tech art teacher, rolled along so fast nobody even thought of nominating Petrovits to succeed himself as a director of the association.

But Christian Walter, president of the association, at whom much criticism had been aimed, was re-elected. Miss Pershing, artist-wife of Dr. J. Clifford Murdoch, was re-elected.

KOSTELLOW ELECTED

Kostellow was named to a directorship and with him four new names included on his slate—Miss Marcella Comes, William R. Shulgold, Emil Zoller and Alfred D. Reid.

Shuffled out of officialdom were Petrovits, Albert Dashbach, Anna G. Woodside (who makes political speeches), Elizabeth Robb and G. F. Biehl.

HEARS SELF ACCUSED

As 150 or more artists—the largest attendance ever to grace the annual meeting—peacefully voted in the new slate and dropped Petrovits. Bowman sat on the side-lines and watched. His was a poker face.

He heard Walter accuse him of copying his second prize winner, "Betty Joan," from Sir James J. Shannon's "Lady Diana Manners." But Walter said nothing about Bowman's alleged copy from Petrovits and from a rotogravure photograph in a Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

And Bowman said nothing, other than friendly words of salutation to his acquaintances.

Of the alleged copies admitted to the show and of the confusion over Elizabeth Shannon Phillips' oil painting "Doll House, Oyster Bay," which was first awarded the water color prize and then kicked out of the show, Walter said:

"Neither of these was the fault of the jury or of the management, but both were due to the lack of knowledge of members."

Singing On Air to Injured Boy

MISS ADA BUTTERMORE . . . BEN SENT HER A TELEGRAM BEFORE HER AUDITION TODAY

Miss Buttermore, the jobless Perryopolis school teacher jailed because she couldn't pay the hospital bills for Ben Roy Scott, injured by her automobile, pictured today as she was given an audition over KDKA. From Ben came this telegram: "Congratulations. Wishing You Success. I Will Be Listening." Ben is in a hospital. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

SINGS TO PAY BILL THAT PUT HER IN JAIL
Congratulations Spur Perryopolis Woman In Audition

Radio and telegraph today united to bring happiness to the Perryopolis school teacher who served time in Fayette County Jail because she couldn't pay the hospital bill of a boy injured by her automobile.

Just two minutes before Miss Ada Buttermore made her singing audition before a KDKA microphone—an audition which she hopes will eventually aid her in helping the injured boy—she received his congraulatory telegram:

"Congratulations. Wishing you success. I will be listening."

It was signed Ben Roy Scott, Charleroi-Monessen Hospital.

As her soprano voice rounded out the words "when shadows fall" in her audition song called "Home," Miss Buttermore said:

"I've worried myself sick over that poor boy. Now he's made me so happy. I hope my singing will help him."

Miss Buttermore's application for a radio test was filed just 10 days before she began serving the two-year sentence imposed by the Fayette County courts. She was released a week later upon promise to pay Ben's hospital bill as soon as she is able.

Out of employment for over a year as a school teacher, she turned to radio. Anyhow, she confided:

"I'd much rather sing than teach school. I don't mind a microphone in the least."

TRAPS BURGLAR IN HOME

Cornered in the bathroom of the home of Mrs. Ada Fonner, 5409 Second avenue, early today, a prowler was captured after Paul Fonner, a son, had fired one shot into the floor as a warning.

Returning home shortly after 2 a. m., Philip Fonner, 17, another son, noticed a light in the dining room of the house formerly used as a hotel. He awoke his mother, who aroused Paul, 26.

Armed with a revolver, Paul went to the dining room, on the second floor, where he found silverware wrapped up and two windows open. Meanwhile the prowler had fled into the bathroom nearby.

Approaching the bathroom door Paul fired a shot into the floor and shouted:

"Come out, and keep your hands up, or I'll shoot."

The trapped man came out, his hands above his head. Told to sit down on a chair, he made a break for liberty. He grappled with Paul, who, aided by others, subdued him.

At Oakland station, where the captive gave his name as Anthony McGrath, 31, of 5247 Dyke street, he was held over by Magistrate W. R. McNamara.

Injury to Elbow Brings Girl's Death

Miss Agnes Bartzyk, 21, of 830 Herron avenue, died last night in St. Francis Hospital from blood poisoning which developed from an injury to her elbow suffered several weeks ago while at work, according to a Coroner's report.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 12.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Some sort of handclapping is due the Republican newspapers for their generous support of the administration, for nothing is as bullheaded as a party newspaper, be it Republican or Democratic. People are the first to forget party lines, newspapers are the last. This is a lesson in generosity to Democratic papers.

Will Rogers

And talking about newspapers, return of beer must have given some new advertising men a job, for never was there as attractive, and intelligent ads in the papers as these new beer ads. Finally we are seeing something as an ad besides a pretty girl smoking a cigaret.

Yours, WILL.

Bandits Force Man Into Hall, Steal Cash

Forced into a hallway at 2035 Fifth avenue early today Lawrence McElhaney, of 99 Roberts street, was robbed of a watch and $10 in cash by two men, he reported to police.

JAILED MAN'S DEATH PROBED

The Coroner's office today was endeavoring to learn how Charles Borg, 58, of 6322 Frankstown avenue, arrested in the East End on a charge of drunkenness, suffered a fractured skull which caused his death last night in Pittsburgh Hospital.

Borg died four hours after he had been taken from a cell in the East End Police Station. Arrested at Larimer avenue and Station street Monday night, Borg could not be roused for a hearing yesterday morning, according to Deputy Coroner Robert D. Newman.

At 1:20 p. m., yesterday, more than 18 hours after his arrest, Borg was taken to the hospital. Police believed him too intoxicated for a hearing.

An autopsy at the county morgue performed by Dr. J. W. McMeans revealed the fracture was four inches long. Deputy coroners said they could detect no odor of alcohol at the post mortem examination.

ADMITS ARSON, GETS 8 YEARS

Fred Schmidtt, 47, of 2722 Voekel avenue, Dormont, today took all blame for burning his home when he pleaded guilty to an arson charge before Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Criminal Court. He was sentenced to from four to eight years in the workhouse.

His son, Fred, 20, was exonerated when county detectives testified he had removed articles of clothing and furniture from the home on his father's orders.

A friend, Jacob Goempel, 32, pleaded no defense and sentence was suspended.

Schmidtt, according to County Detective Peter Connors, took out $7,000 additional fire insurance a month before the house was burned March 8.

$50,000 LEFT BY G. OTTO

Gustav Otto, of Mt. Lebanon, by his will filed today, left the bulk of a $50,000 estate in trust for four nieces and a nephew, Dorothy and Dorris Otto, Helen Seed, Helen Wilson and Lawrence Montgomery, Jr. He also made a $1,000 bequest to Mrs. Marie Wilson.

Mexican Charity Racket Costs Man Bank Roll

That, substantially, is the story George Mihelcic, 58, of 4747 Butler street, told city detectives. It happened like this: George was admiring the new East Liberty Presbyterian Church. The well dressed Mexicans liked his looks and asked:

"Isn't that a beautiful church?"

"Yes, it is a beautiful church?"

"Our father just died in Mexico and left $1,000,00 to be given to needy families. Say, you ought to know some needy families."

Well, one word led to another, until George told police he went to his bank and drew out $587.

Continuing, according to police, he said:

"You see, I was to get my money to make the contract legal. After we had signed the papers, they were to turn the $1,000,000 over to me to distribute to needy families in Pittsburgh."

The philanthropic Mexicans and [illegible] in their machine to get the million. On the way, one of the strangers complained of a headache, so George went into a drug store to buy a box of aspirin tablets.

COYNE SCORED AS PRIMARY BOUT OPENS

The opening gun of the September primary battle boomed into the Coyne camp last night as James P. Bailey, of the Tenth Ward, came out as a candidate for City Council on an "Anti-Coyne" platform, at a rally in Morningside Public School.

Declaring that anything he said in his campaign would be the truth, Bailey, in a scathing attack on Coyne, enlarged upon his nine-word platform which he said was:

"Anti-Coyne, anti-Coyneism, a Public Office is Still a Public Trust."

Vote cheating, night-riding, controlled city officials and other evils of government were laid at Coyne's door by Bailey, a Republican and former chief inspector of the City Weights and Measures Bureau. He said:

"Boss Coyne, the most greedy, the most brutal political boss this or any other city has ever known. I'm against him, his night-riders, his vote cheaters, his O'Malleys and his Muldowneys, one of whom holds a seat in Congress that 90 per cent of the people believe was stolen from a woman by vote cheaters and night-riders.

"He controls City Council and 75 per cent of the city's chief clerks, and he owns Herron body and soul, boots and breeches."

Declaring that the people of Pittsburgh were ready for a new deal, he predicted defeat for Mayor John S. Herron at the polls in September, saying:

"Herron can't be elected, no matter how many thousands of votes are stolen in his behalf. I think the people are fed up on Coyne and his candidates.

"All candidates for Councilmanic vacancies wear the Coyne tag, and I don't believe the city will turn its government over to Coyne and his ward healers."

The candidate said Coyne sought to rule or ruin independent officials and supported his charge by declaring that the Senator was against Judges Frank Patterson, Ralph H. Smith and James H. Gray, Senators Frank Harris and William D. Mansfield, Councilman P. J. McArdle and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell.

THIRD FOREST PARTY BEING RECRUITED

Doubt was expressed that the final contingent to complete Pittsburgh's first reforestation army quota of 900 would leave here today as 330 still remained to be shipped.

The second group, totaling 343, arrived early today at Fort Monroe, Va., bringing the total sent from the city to 570.

The revised official count of the first contingent was 227. This group left Monday night. A 10-car special train carried yesterday's group over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

With the rush of recruits receiving certification from the Allegheny County Emergency Association it had been anticipated the total would be reached today. However, the number of recruits applying with these certificates for physical examination at the United States Army recruiting station showed a decrease beginning yesterday afternoon. Today's shipment was not expected to exceed 175 youths.

Maj. William Buerkle, in charge of the Army station, said his staff would be prepared to handle any rush instantly. The Army is directing transportation of the youths. The third contingent is scheduled to leave on a special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad tonight.

One Happy Family In Big Apartment Makes It 'House'

CHICAGO, April 12.—(AP.)—No less an authority than the Appellate Court has decided when a house is not an apartment.

It affirmed the order of a lower court which held that the 17 children, sons-in-law, daughters-in-law and grandchildren of Mrs. Ellen W. Reagan constituted one big family and therefore their many-roomed place of residence was not in violation of the ban the village of Riverside had placed on apartment houses.

McKeever's Works To Be Given Friday

James H. McKeever, young organist of Old St. Patrick's Church, has composed the complete musical service, both vocal and organ, to be given Friday in the church from noon until 3 o'clock in commemoration of Christ's three hours of agony on the Cross.

Mr. McKeever

It will be the first presentation of this series of compositions. Mr. McKeever's vocal music will be sung by a male octette, including Regis C. Reagan, George W. Bridgeman, Charles Smith, Joseph Kane, John Gallagher, Leo Meet, Edward Heilman and Joseph Sciulli.

Father Cox will officiate throughout the service, which will be of particular significance because this is Holy Year—the nineteenth Centennary of the death of Christ.

TRACK WILD DOG KILLING SHEEP

A wild dog, declared by farmers to be running amuck in Pine and Richland townships and destroying livestock and fowl, was being tracked down today by State Game Protector Ralph A. Liphart and Agent V. D. Johnston, of the animal industry.

The dog is said to have killed more than a dozen sheep, a large goat and innumerable fowl. Liphart said today that he and Johnston had hunted the dog for several days, in one instance trailing it for several miles down Little Deer Creek. Both officers declared they would remain on the job until the animal is slain.

The Tuesday Musical Club presented its choral program yesterday afternoon in the club auditorium of Soldiers' Memorial Hall before the usual audience.

Mr. Lissfelt

The program offered a group of short choral works, Harvey Gaul's "Dream Rhapsody" for women's voices which recently won the prize offered by the Euridice Club of Philadelphia, a short operetta, "Romany Rede" of Elias Blum, and some very lively violin music played by one of the best young players, Mary Redmond.

The Gypsy operetta was done in costume and gave the chorus opportunity to disport a little more freely than in the conventional white party dress; the result was that it sang more happily, too. Mrs. Dale Whitby Westphal, Miss Susan F. Meyers, Mrs. C. H. Aufhammer and Mrs. George Gracelon sang solo parts spiritedly.

Mr. Gaul's work is in his most melodic manner and he lifts it from the monotone dreamy mood by a very skillful use of solo soprano and contralto. Miss Margaret Garrity and Mrs. Janet McMullen are good solo singers and were able to temper their voices to the tone of the choir. Dr. Charles N. Boyd directed with his accustomed devotion, and Elsie Breese Mitchell accompanied.

Hulda Lefridge played accompaniments for Miss Redmond.

Hebrides Folk Music

Miss Emily McCreery, long interested as patroness of Pittsburgh music, presented a most novel lecture-recital in her home last night. The music came from the fisher and shepherd folk of the Hebrides Islands and was presented by Margaret Shaw and her sister, Caroline Shaw Tatom.

Miss Shaw shows not only a tremendous pioneering spirit in living among this primitive people, but her songs are indicative of her wisdom as a musician and collector. Moreover, as an idealist she hopes never to permit them to be arranged with piano accompaniment, but expects to publish them together with her sketches, photographs, and folk stories in their original form. It should be a beautiful contribution to ethnology for Miss Shaw has not only collected these lovely melodies, but her pictures have been caught by the eye of an instinctive artist.

Mrs. Tatom sang many songs out of the collection of Mrs. Kennedy Fraser, working songs, dancing songs, and dirges with real sympathy, being herself endowed with enough Gaelic wit and poetry together with the type of voice that makes these melodies unusually humon.

Gabriel Over the White House

Peale caught my eye. We were both thinking the same thing.

As the third year of President Hammond's term drew toward a close, it became universally evident that a great economic change was occurring throughout the world. Great Britain had definitely weathered the storm. Germany was back on its feet, with a government more stable than any since the war. The rest of Europe was gradually struggling up from below the poverty line. The United States showed a marked increase in prosperity, even though its loss of overseas markets had left the problem of unemployment in the industrial East uncured.

In the midst of this forward movement towered Hammond. Despite interviews, conferences, discussions, Cabinet and council meetings and the talks with economists and other experts, he remained a solitary, almost a tragic, figure in the White House.

An autocrat, a dictator, dominating the United States as he was soon to dominate the world, he remained essentially a democrat in his political outlook. The people who never saw him, except in the glare of their television sets on the occasion of his weekly talks, had for him a regard both as leader and as servant.

Pendie Marries Peale

There had been many changes in the Hammond Cabinet. Some of its early members, failing, had been dismissed. Others had cracked under the physical strain. Their places had been taken in the main by men representing the best type of professional politician.

Pendie and Peale were married the Spring before, but not until after a mighty tussle of wills on the question of Pendie's duties at the White House.

Pendie had firmly refused to resign. Since her recovery from the wound inflicted at Jersey City she had not resumed her full secretarial duties, but had made it her task to look after the personal needs of the President—his meals, his rest, and, as far as he would let her, his comfort. Angry or churlish, as he invariably was with others who interrupted his work, Hammond was never ungracious to Pendie.

Pendie informed Peale that she would feel mortified all her life if she gave up her service with Hammond. Much as she wanted to be with Peale and look after him and his home, a mysterious voice kept telling her that the time was not yet.

In the end they were married on this understanding. Peale was not anxious to acquire a house in Washington, because as soon as his work was completed he would return to his business interests in New York. Pendie hated apartments and hotels. President Hammond, in one of the few acts of personal generosity during his term, offered them his Sixteenth street house at a nominal rental for as long as they cared to have it.

They gladly accepted, moving in upon their return from a honeymoon by air in South America. Pendie already felt very much at home and the Hammond servants who stayed on fairly worshipped her. Peale used to complain that he felt more like an honored guest in her home than a master in his own.

Trouble in Far East

Pendie countered by accusing him of cultivating this feeling to enjoy all the pleasures of illicit love within the sanctity of marriage.

Although their public duties allowed them little time for home life, they occasionally found the opportunity to give a dinner party. It was at these functions that Pendie proved herself an inspired hostess.

Peale and our little coterie had discussed frequently the sinister aspect of the Far Eastern situation, long boiling up to a crisis.

For six months Japan and Russia had been at each other's throats. Their half-hearted indeterminate struggle was given a new and dramatic twist when China, now highly communized, had suddenly thrown in its lot with Russia against Japan.

A Japanese fleet thereupon sailed for Shanghai and sank four ships off the International Settlement, one old United States cruiser, two British and one French. A couple of hundred foreigners were killed in the Settlement.

At once Hammond took the initiative and the result of his negotiations was combined action by Britain, France and the United States.

But even from the outside it was clear the President would have nothing to do with Geneva. He told the league bluntly and publicly that it had failed to accept the responsibilities of its moral obligations. Before the actual declaration of war he induced all the powers associated with the United States to agree that only those ships necessary for formal duties should remain in home ports and that every other vessel, whether battleship, cruiser, destroyer or submarine, should proceed to the East.

A Single Battle

His aim was ostensibly to shorten the duration of the war but, in the light of after events it is morally certain that it was really a master move in a purpose of vital significance and concern to the future of the human race.

The war in the East—if the word "war" can be stretched to include the single battle occurring in the Western Pacific—lasted six weeks.

Before the battleships had fired a single broadside a decision had been reached in the air which rendered them worthless and probably changed the whole course of naval history.

The Japanese, after many of their best warships had been sunk off the Island of Sado by torpedoes dropped by enemy planes, finally met the full aerial strength of the allies in a titanic battle of the skies. The outcome was swift and conclusive and the Mikado's people rose up against the war element, formed a new government and surrendered unconditionally.

Harry Gilmour, my English cousin, who happened to be on the scene of action, gave a stirring account of the triumph of the air force on his return. He recounted his experience at a dinner to Teddy Van Rassaeler, son of the Secretary of the Treasury.

"And," he went on, "if you're interested, I'll tell you from a spectator's point of view the sad story of the submarine.

"You know, of course, that all navies had been for years carrying out experiments in the development of submarine-locating apparatus, just as every nation, especially the French, continued to believe in and build underwater craft of ever-growing dimensions and range. Well, this belief has been ended forever, now that destroyers are fitted with submarine-detecting instruments.

"Standing by the navigation station you first heard a faint whirr and the dial of the instrument lit up with a pale greenish light. That meant a submarine was within three miles of you. You looked at your flotilla warning to ascertain if it was likely to be one of your own ships. To make doubly sure you called it in code. No reply. An enemy craft.

Submarines Destroyed

"The rest was simple. All you had to do was to ring for full speed. The dial gave the direction, distance and depth of your quarry, automatically adjusting its readings as you approached. You fitted the electrical connection to the depth charge, and waited. The dial showed that you were almost overhead and that the submarine had realized its danger and was submerging rapidly to a lower level.

"Suddenly the whirr ceased. A tiny bell sounded and the faint opalescent light on the dial dimmed and went out. The depth charge had been automatically dropped by that fiendishly inhuman machine.

"You looked astern and saw a great pillar of water shoot into the air. You circled round the spot. There was never anything to see except an oily film fouling the surface of the water.

"Lets talk about something else," said Peale. "Van Rassaeler, what do you think is the biggest individual thing the President has done in the last three years—I mean the thing of most permanent value to the country as a whole?"

Van Rassaeler thought it would be either the monetary policy, with its raising of commodity prices, or the steps taken to deal with unemployment. Connor ruled both out, because they were only temporary expedients to deal with an abnormal and now passing situation.

Loyal to his own Department of Public Safety, Peale urged the federalization of the police and the extermination of gunmen and gangsters, but this was also rejected by the others on similar grounds.

Judge Cochran demurred at this last ruling. "The gangsters, yes, that was only a bad nightmare, a passing phenomenon which the good sense of our people would have dealt with sooner or later in any event. But the federalization of the police and their removal from political influence and corruption, that surely can be claimed as having an abiding value, though whether posterity will appreciate its importance I can't say. And the same applies to what, if I may be forgiven for boasting, is, I submit, the really big thing—the establishment of one federal judiciary throughout the Union."

How Do Chorus Girls Manage?

The theatre knows no "sick list." Chorus girls just can't be "absent." Regardless of their monthly sickness, they must be in line, on time, on their toes, and smiling. How do they do it? Nature doesn't spare them. They stop the pain for hours at a stretch, by the use of a perfectly harmless medicine called Midol.

It acts in seven minutes. Relief is complete. The pain is gone. Midol is not a narcotic and offers no interference with nature. All druggists; ask simply for Midol.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Patience Is Not a Virtue Under All Conditions

Bad tempers—are they ever justified?

Suppose someone picks on you, taking advantage of you—what should you do?

Stand up and fight for your rights—

Dear Elsie:

I've just been reading about the red-head who has such a terrible temper, and I am wondering whether it isn't maybe better to have a temper and say things and get it over, than it is to keep still till you are ready to burn up.

I'll tell you just what I am up against. I hope you will print it and give me your opinion. Maybe if my sister sees it she will change her ideas about some things.

She is a divorcee, and she is now living with me, with her two children. I am boarding them for almost nothing so she can save her money. I have three children myself. And now here is the point.

My sister won't correct her children, and if I say so much as one word to correct them when they do something naughty, she flares up at me as much as to say that I am picking on her. She has no control over them at all, and they have no respect for her—or anyone else.

Now I really want to help her. Why can't she see that I do help her, when I allow her and the children to stay in my home, and spoil its routine?

HUSBAND DISPLEASED

My children are getting just like hers, because they see what hers do and get away with. It is terrible!

My husband is very peeved with the way things are going, and he tells me to sit down and have a talk with her about the way the children act, and the attitude she takes; but when I do so she cries and says we are "picking on her."

Of course I, myself, know that she is selfish and is only living with us to save her money. I know she gets a neat sum every six months from her ex-husband, and she could very nicely afford a small apartment. Yet I would not mind helping her like that, if she would just act different.

She is right on the job to correct my children, and scolds them, when she knows hers are the cause of the wrong-doing. I do want to be fair to her and let her and the children enjoy our home, but why can't she be a little broad minded and realize that my children are human, too? Mine are all younger than hers, so naturally they pick up everything hers do.

I'm sorry for her, but I am getting good and tired of the way things are going. I'd like to give her a good shaking. She pouts and won't talk till I coax her out of it, if I say anything to her. Am I wrong in feeling the way I do? Should I be more patient? LILLA.

WRECKING HAPPINESS

Should you be more patient? Why? What has patience brought you so far, sister? Miserable unhappiness and a demoralized home—that's what. Patience truly "ceases to be a virtue" under such conditions, and so does the pity which stands for her pouts.

The simple truth is that your sister is Running A Racket and getting by with it—and you are wrecking your home and your husband's happiness because you haven't the gumption to stand off and tell her what's what. And when she has finally wrecked everything, she'll be the first to despise you for your spinelessness.

And you'll deserve it, Lilla. For you've no more right to hand over your home's happiness to this selfish moocher than you would have to hand over your husband's money to a common thief.

So tell her to move on—and see that she does.

"But she'll cry!" you object. Of course she'll cry, and put on her big Martyr Act. All right! Let her! Her Martyr Complex is probably responsible for her wrecked marriage. Don't let it wreck yours.

You are not responsible for the hash she has made for her life. Your responsibility is to your own husband and your own home and children—and you're actually cheating if you let her mess them up.

Men and Women Hate to See "Impersonations," Says Fay King

IF TROUSERS EVER BECOME FASHIONABLE THEY WILL BE AN ARTISTIC FEMININE KIND!
FEMININITY WILL EVER, BE A WOMANS CHIEF CHARM
IT DISGUSTS ME TO SEE A MAN DRESSED UP LIKE A WOMAN!
IT DISGUSTS ME TO SEE A GIRL DRESSED LIKE A MAN!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

A woman need not be a beauty, but she must be feminine to attract a real man. A man may be homely, but if he is manly he will appeal to the loveliest of women.

And each must be thoroughly feminine and masculine to be liked and admired by their own sex.

Women may momentarily laugh at the antics of a female impersonator, but men are disgusted to see a man dolled up in woman's dress. On the other hand men may laugh and applaud a male impersonator's stage performance, but women resent seeing a woman dressed like a man.

If trousers should ever become a general fashion for women, which I doubt, they will be so designed as not to seem a bit mannish.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Signals of Whirring Motor Heard on Time

The whirring noise to the left of us grew steadily louder, and there came from the lips of the three men near me an echo of the name I had breathed to myself, not daring to speak it aloud.

"Richard!" My father spoke the name with relief.

"Dick!" Hugh Grantland said, and there was in his voice something that told me the long-awaited signal was like the cutting of the tape which sets sprinters on their way.

"The Dicky-bird! and on time to a split second. I'll radio the world!" Harry Underwood's whisper had all the quality of a jubilant shout, and as I saw him raise his radium-dialed wrist watch to his eyes and stand silently counting, I thrilled to his joyful, affectionate pride in his best friend's achievement.

Nearer and nearer came the whirring noise until, for the fraction of a second, it was directly over our heads then it zoomed on in the direction of the farmhouse, as Wynne had outlined it to us. Harry Underwood whispered another jubilant little exclamation.

"I told you so! Right to the fraction of a second! That's the Dicky-bird! Now it's up to us. I hope the girls are able to carry out their part of the plan!"

PREPARE FOR SIGNAL

There was suddenly in his whispering tones a raucous, uneven quality, and I knew that to his brain had risen the vision that was before my mental eyes—that of two brave girls hastily barricading the door and window of their prison with the furniture at hand. Suppose that furniture was flimsy, and the desperate men who were their jailers should be able to break their barricade when they discovered it?

I answered that question as soon as I had asked it of myself. It was Marion herself, who, in the code letter to her mother, which the kidnapers apparently had not suspected had said that they could make a barricade of the furniture. I had faith enough in her judgment to be sure that she would not have suggested such a plan if she had not at hand the means to carry it out.

"Yes sir."

"Get the men ready for the signal. Have them right on their toes. We're going over in exactly ten minutes, and there musn't be the slightest slip-up. Mr. Underwood and I will be with you well before the time for the signal."

"Right-o, sir." Wynne was gone upon the word, and for the space of a second or two there was silence in the little woodland glade. Then Philip Veritzen put a question that I was mentally asking.

"Where will Mr. Graham go, now that he has flown over the house at the time he specified?"

PLANE RETURNS

"He said that he would go a little higher as soon as he was well beyond the house," my father answered, "and then keep circling in a wide radius until we throw up flares from here—one, if everything's all right; two, if something has gone wrong and we need him back here."

Harry Underwood, who usually is most meticulous in his deference to my father, hardly waited for him to stop speaking before voicing a query of his own.

"Did you notice anything special about the sound of that motor, Hugh?"

"Yes; I fancy, the same thing that you did."

"I wonder why he changed?" "Was my imagination playing me tricks, or was there a note of worry in Harry Underwood's voice? "I didn't know he'd ever skippered that type of boat."

"Nor I. Do you suppose he means to— Listen!"

I, for one, did not need the injunction. Every nerve I had was tensed in the effort to gauge the direction of flight and the height above us of that whirring motor.

"He's coming back!" Harry said.

Contract Bridge -:- -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Question of Control

It frequently seems that the Opening Hand should always be in control of the situation, provided the Responding Hand has not made a Forcing bid. This is not always the case, however, as was proved in a hand which was recently played in the finals of the Eastern Championships held in New York City, between a team-of-four, consisting of Messrs. Michael T. Gottlieb, Theodore A. Lightner, Oswald Jacoby and Louis H. Watson, and a team-of-four, consisting of Messrs. David Burnstine, Richard Frey, Charles Lochridge and Howard Schenken.

South, Dealer.

East-West vulnerable.

	♠ 9 8 4 ♡ J 7 5 ◇ Q 8 4 3 ♣ Q 10 5
Mr. Burnstine		Mr. Frey
♠ A K 5 ♡ 9 4 2 ◇ A J 9 ♣ A K 7 6	North West East South	♠ Q 10 7 6 3 ♡ A K Q ◇ 10 7 2 ♣ J 4
	♠ J 2 ♡ 10 8 6 3 ◇ K 6 5 ♣ 9 8 3 2

At Table 1 the bidding was opened by Mr. Burnstine with a bid of one club. Mr. Frey responded with one spade and Mr. Burnstine bid two notrump. This bid is undoubtedly correct, although at first glance the honor-trick content of the hand would seem to be sufficient to warrant a bid of three notrump. The fact that the heart suit contains no honor justifies the slight underbid. Mr. Frey responded with three notrump, and the bidding closed at that point. Of course, six were made, and at first glance the blame for missing the Slam is not apparent.

At Table 2 the bidding progressed in the same fashion, except that Mr. Lightner, holding the East hand, responded to Mr. Gottlieb's two notrump bid with a bid of three spades. When Mr. Gottlieb bid four spades, Mr. Lightner was fairly confident that the hand contained a Slam, since his partner's two notrump bid must be a very big one, lacking, as was obvious, the three top honors in hearts. Therefore, the next bid was four notrump—a bid which was obviously not part of the Grand Slam Convention—and Mr. Gottlieb was able to contract for a Small Slam in notrump.

The hand, of course, was a spread for 12 tricks, at the very worst being dependent upon a double diamond finesse.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Declarer leads from the wrong hand and an opponent calls attention to the incorrect lead. Is Declarer subject to the penalty for a revoke if he fails or is unable to lead the suit from the correct hand?

Answer—Declarer is subject to the penalty for a revoke if he fails to lead the suit from the closed hand if able. "If able" means if the closed hand is not void of the suit. If the correct hand (Dummy or closed hand) is void of the suit, there is no penalty and Declarer is free to lead any suit he chooses from the correct hand.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Correct Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Is it necessary to remove your wrap when having lunch at a restaurant?

2—What would you think of a young man, or a girl, who spends a week at the home of his or her friend, without an invitation from some other member of the family? Does it seem quite right?

There are others who feel as I do about this, so please don't tell us we are old-fashioned.

WONDERING.

1—No, not at all necessary. It is just a question as to what you wish to do.

2—Indeed I won't tell you that you are old-fashioned if you regard this as a breach of good form. I consider it a very fundamental detail in social form. A young man or a young woman should not pay visits of this kind on the invitation of only the friend herself or himself. It is distinctly necessary to be invited also by the hostess of the home in which the visit is to be made—the mother, or, if there is no mother, by the official hostess of the home.

And so important is this invitation that, if it is not forthcoming, the man or the girl may, with perfect propriety, suggest that he or she hesitates to come without such an invitation.

NEW SPRING JACKETS HAVE THAT COVETED SWAGGER AIR

LIFE IS full of surprises, and so are spring clothes. From the front they're as demure and straight as can be. But the moment you turn around your chic can be appraised by how full your coat or jacket is. The very best of them have masses of material falling loose from the shoulders to the hem. They're extremely swagger looking, and a natural development of the informal, loose sport coat of 1932.

* * *

THE ONE at the left shows how a short jacket can have the new square look and fullness at the back without being at all bulky or fussy. The center one, too, is neat looking, although there are literally yards of the grey flannel concentrated in the sleeves down the back. By the way, this is one of the most important lengths. It's flattering to any figure and thoroughly dashing.

* * *

THE THIRD jacket positively flares out behind, and what could be smarter? It's coral, a very essential color on this year's pallet, over a white skirt. It would be equally nice with the colors reversed, white over coral or a dark shade.

* * *

THERE ARE going to be loads of white and natural linen jackets, mostly full in the back, worn right in town this summer. They look and are the coolest thing on earth, so you'd better invest in one and be ready for any weather. It's a joy to have this sort of thing to travel in. You can wrap it around yourself snugly when the rain begins to stream and yet it flap loosely when the sun beats down.

Household Hints

If a strong solution of soda is thrown over coal just before it is placed on the fire, a considerable saving will result.

Do not throw away celery tops. Save the green leaves and dry in the oven. Then rub into a powder and store in a glass jar with a tight lid. This makes an excellent flavoring for soups and stews.

Many housewives use a pinch of soda to keep vegetables green in the cooking, but super-housewives use a pinch of sugar instead of soda which not only retains the vegetables' fresh color but adds to the flavor. Keeping the lid off while cooking is also a help.

Your Walls Made Bright as New.... at very Low Cost!

If you want clean, bright walls—without the heavy expense of re-decorating—do it the Climax way. Wallpaper, paint (flat finishes or glaze) and the various plaster processes, as well as window shades, cretonne, chintz and tapestry, respond beautifully to the Climax treatment. You can thus restore the original freshness and color in many places about your home, with hardly any expense. You can do this yourself, or with inexpensive help, at a very welcome saving. But insist on the right cleaner—Climax, in the blue can.

Pitt University Women Shown Dance Steps

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Dance movements of various periods are being illustrated in the program of dances which Miss Genevieve Jones is giving today in the College Club at the spring luncheon of the Women's Association of the University of Pittsburgh.

Miss Greta Marcus is furnishing the piano music for the dances and is also giving several piano solos between Miss Jones's numbers.

Miss Jones is using a Couperin composition by which to interpret the preclassic period, Haydn for the classic, Chopin for the romantic period and Bartok for the modern. Miss Katherine Tait is also contributing two dance numbers.

Election of officers follows luncheon, the ticket including Mrs. George B. Hatfield, president; Mrs. George Beal and Mrs. D. D. Lessenberry, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. M. C. Elmer, corresponding, and Mrs. J. Warren Madden, recording secretaries, and Mrs. Chester A Buckner, treasurer.

FLAG HOPE STRONG AS SEASON DAWNS

ALWAYS A GRIPPING occasion, the opening of the baseball season today finds interest among the fans of the Pittsburgh district even higher than usual, because of the encouraging prospect that 1933 may be the Pirates' year. Rarely has a local club started out under such favorable conditions, or looking like so good a bet as compared with the opposing field, and while the home rooters realize that in a game so uncertain as the diamond sport nothing more than a pennant possibility ever can be claimed for any team, regardless of its strength on paper, the confidence is strong among them that with an even break in luck George Gibson will have at least as good a chance as any rival to bring his club home in front.

George Gibson

Gibson has done a good preliminary job by bringing the Bucs up to the starting line in fine condition for the long fight. There is every promise that under his continued smart handling they will be certain contenders. They have the strength and the spirit. Don't lose heart if things don't go rightly in the early games. The race will last almost 25 weeks and class will assert itself in the long run.

THE PIRATE HIGH CLUB has a very creditable all-time record behind [illegible] another season. During their 46 years in the National League the locals played, not counting ties, a grand total of 6,1[illegible] of which they won 3,022 against 2,827 defeats, a percentage [illegible] and New York clubs have made a higher mark. Pittsburgh has won six pennants and two world championships, finished second [illegible] times, third six times, fourth seven times, fifth four times, sixth [illegible] times, seventh four times and eighth five times. It finished [illegible] with the Giants in 1908 and divided third place with [illegible]

THE FIRST GAME [illegible] in the National League was played [illegible] on the home grounds in old Allegheny on April [illegible] Jimmy Galvin pitched the locals to a 6-to-2 victory over [illegible] allowing only nine hits to 12 off Clarkson.

Billy [illegible] present evangelist, played center field and led off for the visitors. The other Chicago outfielders were Jimmy Ryan and Mike Sullivan; the infield was made up of Pop Anson, Fred Pfeffer, Ed Williamson and Tom Burns, and Tom Daly was the catcher. Dorgan Miller caught for Pittsburgh, with Alex McKinnon, Sam Barclay, Pop Smith and Arthur Whitney in the infield, and Abner Dalrymple, Tom Brown and Jack Coleman in the outfield.

THE TALK THAT this season probably will be the last for Babe Ruth as a player, because age and long service are figured to be due to stop him, would give the impression that the game's highest-salaried performer also has been playing longer in the majors than any other member of the ranks taking the field today for a new campaign. But as a matter of fact, there are five men still in harness who were big leaguers when Ruth was bought by the Red Sox from Baltimore on July 8, 1914, for only $2,900. They are Rabbit Maranville, of the Braves; Charley Jamieson, of the Indians; Urban Faber, of the White Sox; Eppa Rixey, of the Reds, and Herb Pennock, of the Yankees. Rixey was then with the Phillies, and Pennock with the A's. Jack Quinn came up earlier, but was out from 1912 to 1918.

Rabbit Maranville

AS THE ENDURANCE marvel of the lot, Maranville is not even approached. Rixey and Faber are older, not counting Quinn, but they were merely pitchers and now work only occasionally. The same goes for Pennock, and Jamieson is but a substitute outfielder.

But there's Maranville still in the lineup as a regular infielder, starting his twenty-first big league season at the age of 41, and still ranking as one of the most valuable players in the business after withstanding for years and years the strain of every-day toil at his former position of shortstop, the toughest job on a ball field. As a physical prodigy, the Rabbit is off in a class of his own. There's nobody even second.

IN MOST OF the cities the home fans will find it difficult to recognize their favorite old clubs. Never before in the history of the two big leagues did the coming of a season see so many new shifts. Trades, sales and releases, with purchases and drafts from the minors involved a change of clubs for almost 200 players. In the majors alone more than 50 survivors have been moved around.

AMONG THE BIG leaguers appearing with different clubs as compared with 1932 are Freddie Lindstrom, Waite Hoyt, Babe Herman, Dazzy Vance, Frank Hogan, Jim Bottomley, Rogers Hornsby, Bob O'Farrell, Bill Walker, Jim Mooney, Ray Benge, Owen Carroll, Joe Judge, Bob Smith, Ralston Hemsley, Johnny Moore, Glenn Spencer, Gordon Slade, Jake Flowers, Gus Dugas, Harvey Hendrick, Chick Fullis, Estel Crabtree, Mickey Finn, Austin Mc[illegible], Gus Mancuso, Ray Starr and Ethan Allen in the National League. In the American the shifted athletes include Al Simmons, Jimmy Dykes, Mule Haas, Carl Reynolds, Sam West, Fred Schulte, Muddy Ruel, Lloyd Brown, Luke Sewell, Roy Spencer, Bailey Peterson, Jack Russell, Hal Rhyne, Eddie Durham, Bob Fothergill, Johnny Hodapp, Bob Seeds, Charley Fischer and Gregory Mulleavy.

A BASEBALL [illegible] SEASON starting without John J. McGraw in the picture suggests what they used to call the Pittsburgh club when Honus Wagner was missing from the lineup—a watch without the works. It's the first time in 40 years that a major league campaign has been put [illegible] Wagner and McGraw's being in the parade.

The scene [illegible] incomplete with the famous veteran on the side [illegible] the Cubs opening the season under a different manager for the first time since 1902. Another absent figure that was one of the connecting links between the old days and the modern game is that of Bill Gleason, coach of the A's, who died on January 2.

BUT INTO THE void resulting from the absence of McGraw and Gleason there has stepped one of the other heroes of the past. Honus Wagner has come back as a Pirate coach to keep alive memories of baseball as it used to be.

Honus Wagner

It's like the good old days to see the Flying Dutchman, greatest player of all time and one of the most popular diamond figures in history, returning after 16 years to be part of the opening picture at the age of 59.

MANY MORE FAMILIAR old faces besides those of McGraw and Gleason are missing as the curtain goes up today. The passing of a single year has wrought a great change in the major league ranks. Walter Johnson has departed as a manager, and so have Dan Howley and Shauno Collins. Well-known coaches who have gone out are Dave Bancroft, Jack Onslow, Mickey Doolan, Howard Shanks, Clarence Mitchell, Johnny Butler, Charley O'Leary, Bill Cunningham, Pat Gharrity, and Eddie Ainsmith, and missing players who were in there a year ago include Mike Gonzales, Jakie May, Lu Blue, Harry Heilmann, Art Shires, Wally Gilbert, Ervin Brame, Rube Bressler, Sylvester Johnson, Fred Leach, Joe Boley and Eddie Connolly, not to mention many others of shorter service.

DESHONG RELEASED

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP.)—On the eve of the opening of the 1933 baseball season, the New York Yankees sent Jimmy DeShong, young right hand pitcher, to their International League club at Newark on option. DeShong was one recruit with the Bronx team's supply of pitchers obtained by the Yanks from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League.

YANKS CHOICE IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

By BABE RUTH

Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

The training season is over and 16 teams are ready to go. Two of them are confident of repeating their successes of last season, and 14 others start the pennant races with high hopes of doing better than they did in 1932. At this time, for several years, I have been expressing my ideas as to how the teams should finish, so here goes for 1933:

American League	National League
New York	Pittsburgh
Philadelphia	Chicago
Washington	Brooklyn
Cleveland	Philadelphia
St. Louis	St. Louis
Chicago	New York
Detroit	Cincinnati
Boston	Boston

I know that some of these selections will not be well received, but this is the way the teams shape up in my ratings. I have given each league much thought, and have tried to figure out the effects of various trades or purchases made during the winter.

Some of my selections of last year disappointed me, particularly the Cardinals and Giants, whom I picked as the leading pennant contenders. Others surprised me, and possibly some of the teams which seem weak to me now, will prove surprises as the season goes on.

YANKEES SELECTED

I look for the Yankees to repeat because all of the strength of 1932 holds over for the new season, and some additional pitching and outfield strength was shown at the training camp. I think the A's will be able to hold second place, in spite of the big sale to the White Sox, because I am told the new players with Mack's team are above the ordinary. Then, again, Connie has Grove to head his pitching staff, and I believe Earnshaw and Walberg will be more effective than they were last season. The remainder of the staff looks better than it did a year ago.

Washington has made several changes, but I cannot see the Senators prevailing against the heavier hitting of the Yankees or the A's, so I am placing them third.

In the National League I have picked Pittsburgh to win. I think the young infielders will show marked improvement, and that Lindstrom gives them the best outfield in the league. I figure that the injury to Cuyler will be sorely felt by the Cubs, and that his absence from the lineup will prove a handicap of several games before he is able to return. This will help the Pirates and make Chicago's task all the more difficult.

DODGERS IMPROVED

The addition of Benge and other pitching changes should help the Dodgers, and I figure they will finish third. The Phillies have plenty of hitting power and I think their new infield combination will help a lot. They are my choice for fourth place.

Some dopesters see the Cardinals as strong pennant contenders, but I can't see them that way yet. Infield uncertainties make the Cards something of a question mark right now, though the pitching looks good. The Giants are going through the process of reconstruction, and are not likely to cut any big figure in the pennant fight. They tied for sixth last season, and I pick them for sixth now.

U. S. Indoor Polo Play Opens Tonight

CHICAGO, April 12.—(AP.)—The national indoor championship polo tournament opens at the 124th Field Artillery Armory tonight with two Chicago teams meeting in the first engagement. The opening rivals are the Chicago Riding Club and the Sixth Corps area.

YOUNG CORBETT TO TAKE ON M'LARNIN

LOS ANGELES, April 12.—(AP.)—After three weeks of promotional efforts, in which the bout once hung by the slender difference of a foot of adhesive tape, the Young Corbett-Jimmy McLarnin fight for the welterweight championship of the world lacked only the signatures today.

Promoter Jack Doyle brought the managers of the two fighters into agreement, and promised the 10-round encounter would be staged at Wrigley Field here the night of May 20.

George Blake was selected as referee to settle one of the arguments between Larry White, the champion's manager, and Charles (Pop) Foster, who handles McLarnin's affairs.

The squabble over the amount of tape and bandages, which constituted the basis for the last barrier to bringing the two battlers together was ended when it was decided an unlimited amount of gauze and four feet six inches of tape for each hand would be permissible.

HONUS SELECTS ALL-STAR NINE

CINCINNATI, April 12.—(AP.)—The two great examples of how not to bat, said Honus Wagner today, are Honus Wagner and Ty Cobb. Honus said:

"The books on baseball say to choke the bat is the thing the batter must not do.

"Ty Cobb always choked his bat, and so did I. We managed to get away with it, and I guess we were what you might call guess hitters. Somehow or other we always managed to knock the pill where the other fellows weren't."

Wagner then named what he considered the ideal team of old-timers in the National League. He headed it with Willie Keeler at right field, because of his ability to "hit 'em where they ain't."

He put Clarence Beaumont, former Pirate, at center field because he made the record of six infield hits in a single game. He put Fred Clark, former Pittsburgh manager, at left field; Jimmy Collins, at third; Hughie Jennings, at short; Napoleon (Larry) Lajoie, at second; Fred Tenny, at first; John Kling, at catch, and Christy Mathewson, at pitch.

MILLVALE ARENA TO OPEN MAY 15

MONDAY NIGHTS AWARDED TO HICKEY PARK

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The Hickey Park Arena, in Millvale, has been assured the choice night of the week, Monday, and Promoter John L. Hernon plans to inaugurate his outdoor campaign on May 15.

Motor Square Garden has tossed together a joblot of preliminaries to serve as a supporting cast for the appearance of Max Schmeling in an exhibition next Monday night, with Jack Dempsey refereeing the main event. Here's the bill:

Alabama Kid vs. Carl Montebano in a return bout of eight rounds, and Johnny Riske vs. Carmen Barth, of Cleveland, Red Bruce vs. Tony Di Piero and Carl Gross vs. Curly Klaas, six rounds each.

RECEIPTS FALL DOWN

The Ted Yarosz-Andy Di Vodi show at the Garden last Monday drew less than a grand and a half, something unusual for a Yarosz bout. He beat that mark by more than $1,000 when he boxed Paulie Walker at the Arena, on the North Side, recently.

Heine Blaustein, of Baltimore, who will be the promoter of shows at an outdoor arena seating 6,500 in his city this summer, is contacting the local managers for lists of their boxers. Heine is the trainer of Vince Dundee and formerly also handled Joe Dundee.

A flock of the best little fellows in the ring are gathered on one card at the Arena tomorrow night, when Johnny Pena meets Jackie Wilson, Jimmy Thomas boxes Pete De Grasse and Mose Butch tangles with Johnny Hinds in 10-round bouts. If this program doesn't produce action it is impossible to dope out a card that will.

FIRST OF POE STARS DEAD

BALTIMORE, April 12.—(AP.)—On a November afternoon in 1882, S. Johnson Poe scored a touchdown for Princeton against Columbia and opened a page in football history that is without parallel.

He was the first of the six Poe brothers, of Baltimore, who for two decades brought delight to Nassau supporters with their football prowess.

He died Monday night in Washington.

With the death of S. Johnson Poe, four of the famous brothers are left. John Prentice Poe, whose exploits on the gridiron came in the early nineties, and who later was a soldier of fortune, was killed in France in 1915, when his regiment, the Black Watch, of Scotland, was ordered over the top.

The living brothers are Edgar Allan Poe and Gresham Poe, of Baltimore; Nelson Poe, of Princeton, and Arthur Poe, of Cedar Rapids, Ia.

School Volleyball Finals on Today

The city scholastic volleyball championship will be decided this afternoon and evening with both senior and junior finalists clashing.

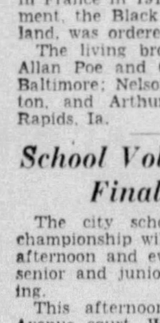
This afternoon, on the Fifth Avenue court, Westinghouse and Overbrook will battle for the junior title. Tonight at Westinghouse, Peabody and Westinghouse will meet for the senior crown.

As an added attraction, the Downtown Y. M. C. A. team, which will play in the national tournament at Washington, D. C., will give an exhibition.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

WASHINGTON, April 12.—On the day of the season's opening I want to report I am in the baby-pink of condition.



Nick Altrock

A week ago, it's true, I suffered a slight touch of funny business in my stomach. It seems one meal I gobbled down some pigs' knuckles and gefulte fish, and on account of the trouble Hitler is raising, those dishes don't mix any more. The next thing I knew I was coming out of a coma. I said to the nurse:

"Oh, I've got such a delicate appetite."

She said:

"Yes, and such a cute indigestion."

And, folks, that's what I had. But Uncle Nicholas wants to announce to his public he is all right again. At today's opening I will be out there clowning and looking funnier than the Four Marx Brothers, the two Smith Brothers and the seven Sutherland Sisters.

There is no truth in the rumor I almost stuffed myself to death on our spring training trip. You don't catch Uncle Nick killing himself with victuals just when the free lunch is back to stay.

Baseball Season to Get Greeting From Seals

Sam Watters James Comoroda Louis Amen Louis Kaufman

The new baseball season, which opens today, will get a lusty greeting from the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph through the medium of a special radio program of 35 minutes over WCAE this evening, beginning at 6:40 o'clock.

With Harry Keck, sports editor, as master of ceremonies, the Seals will present Louis L. Kaufman, the Globe Trotter; James Comoroda, tenor singer, better known to the sports fans as Jimmy Conrad, former boxing manager, and later identified with golf at South Park; Louis Amen, pianist, known on the stage with Clark and McCullough and Chic Sale as Louis La Grana; Sam E. Watters, vice president and secretary of the Pirates; Tom Birks, the singing sports scribe; Ruth Johnstone, pianist; Julius Levin, of the sports department, and Leland Becraft, the announcer. A special tribute will be sung to Honus Wagner.

Remember the time, 6:40 p. m.—20 minutes earlier than usual.

CAMPBELL BOWS TO CROVATTA

Amateur boxing fans turned out to the number of about 3,000 for the Homewood-Brushton Boosters' Club benefit show at Motor Square Garden last night and were glad they turned out.

George Thomas, of the East Liberty A. C., won by a technical knockout over Patsy Contillo of the Willow Club, in the third round.

Davis Cup Net Plans Hit Snag

NEW YORK, April 12.—(INS.)—The Davis Cup plans of Argentina, Canada and Cuba struck a snag today.

Canada and Cuba are supposed to play their tie late this month or in the first part of May, but neither country wants to guarantee the other team's expenses. The United States Lawn Tennis Association has been asked by Canada to arrange for a neutral site, and the match may be played in this country.

Meanwhile word came from Argentina that three of the five members of that team will not be able to come to the United States for the American zone final match in June, due to pressure of business. As a last resort, Chile, runner-up to Argentina in the South American zone, may be named to represent South America against the United States team.

Belmont Park Cuts Spring Race Dates

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP.)—Failure of the State Senate to legalize betting will force Belmont Park to cut its spring racing program in half and institute sharp reductions in ticket prices.

Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association which operates the track, said Belmont's spring meeting would be held from May 27 to June 10, a total of 12 racing days as compared with 24 a year ago. The schedule will be submitted to the jockey club for ratification today.

Nothing better than overnight purses of $600 and $700 will be offered.

Phillies Dispose Of Les Mallon

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—(AP.)—The Phillies have announced the outright sale of Les Mallon, regular second baseman in 1932, to the Toronto Maple Leafs, of the International League.

President Gerald Nugent, of the Phils, said the transaction included an option to repurchase Mallon at the close of the 1933 season. Nugent said Mallon would join his new teammates in Baltimore today.

CARLSON GETS FLOOR POST

By JESS CARVER

Dr. H. C. Carlson, of Pitt, has returned home from the annual gathering of the National Association of Basketball Coaches with the portfolio of secretary and the advice that the 1935 convention of the association probably will be held right here in Pittsburgh.

The Pitt mentor, who is outstanding among the nation's floor coaches, was well pleased with the eight rule changes effected at the gathering over the week-end in New York. He was especially satisfied with the three-second rule involving the pivotman. Dr. Carlson believes the change will speed up the game.

Prior to leaving for New York last week, Dr. Carlson came out with a suggestion that the scoring rules be changed so as to count three points for a field goal and campaigned for the elimination of the tipoff.

These suggestions of the good doctor were discussed at the meeting, but Carlson and other coaches favoring them did not press them before the rules committee.

The 1934 convention will be held in Atlanta, Ga., and the board of directors of the association went on record as favoring Pittsburgh for the 1935 confab.

Pressman Honored At Bowling Dinner

A "Taps" tribute was paid to the memory of the late Robert Hudson, a pressman for 28 years, at the annual bowling banquet of the pressmen of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in the Elks' Temple last night. Hudson died during the past year.

Talks were made by John Mulvaney, president, and James Wilson, secretary, of the bowling league, along with Joseph Hagen, secretary of Pressmen's Union No. 9; Frank Cunningham, chairman of the chapel, and Al Yochum manager of the Aldine alleys. The prizes were awarded by Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, who acted as toastmaster.

Protesting Golfers To Hold Meeting

An organization meeting of golfers protesting the raising of the fee for players at the county parks will be held in the Cardinal room of the William Penn Hotel at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening, it was announced today by J. E. Heywang, one of the leaders in the movement.

All public links players are invited to attend. Plans will be formulated for action at a second meeting with the County Commissioners.

DALE CAMPBELL WINS

LEAFS PROLONG ICE DUEL

TORONTO, April 12.—(AP.)—Due largely to the straight shooting and the inspiration of their smallest member, Ken Doraty, the Toronto Maple Leafs still are in the fight to retain the Stanley Cup and the championship of the professional hockey world.

After losing the first two games of the final playoff series to the New York Rangers, Doraty led the Leafs to a 3-to-2 triumph in the third contest and prolonged the playoff to a fourth game, which will be played here tomorrow. The team which first wins three games takes the cup.

Savoldi Suspended By Mat Association

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 12.—(AP.)—Karl W. Malone, secretary of the National Wrestling Association, has announced suspension by the association of Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football star, who did or did not, according to the individual viewpoint, win the national wrestling championship from Jim Londos at Chicago Friday.

Malone, who is also chairman of the association's suspension committee, said Savoldi was suspended at the request of Indiana athletic officials who reported Savoldi failed to fulfill a contract at Evansville Monday night.

Michaels Signed By Harrisburg

HARRISBURG, April 12.—(AP.)—Ralph Michaels, of Pittsburgh, infielder, has been signed by the Harrisburg Senators of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Michaels played with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League until he hurt his shoulder toward the close of the 1932 season. He formerly played with the Chicago Cubs and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

HEAVY SOCCER CARD SET FOR WEEK-END

By TOM BIRKS

An interesting schedule of games is on the books for West Penn open competition over the week-end. On Saturday afternoon at the Westinghouse High School Field, Sygan and Curry will clash in the fourth meeting between the clubs. The teams are tangled up in a deadlock at present.

The rivals already have met at Curry, Sygan and Greenlee Field, but neither has been able to win a game.

Sunday finds two great games on tap. At South Park, Heidelberg and the Zoneys will swing into action. The Green and Gold clashing with the Shannonites should attract the fans.

At Castle Shannon, the McKnights will have a real warm-up game for the national final one week hence, when they meet the Moon Run club. The teams have already battled two hours without a result. The game should serve to put the McKnights on edge for the amateur title battle in Philadelphia one week from Saturday.

The Sygan team also swings into action on Sunday when it meets the Shannon Webers at South Park at 1:30 o'clock. This game will be played as a preliminary to the Zoney-Heidelberg game.

CITY LEAGUERS AMEND RULES

The City Baseball League will swing into action Monday, May 8, and the teams will play three games a week. This was decided upon a meeting of the circuit last night.

The league managers made one change in the rules governing the signing of players. In the past, players have been making all kinds of promises to managers, but the club the players first performed with during the league season held the player.

The managers found that they got little or no protection from this rule, so an amendment was put through and from this date the first contract received by the league president will be the official contract, and the player will be held to that.

The official ball for the league was adopted, and the next meeting of the managers called for April 25. At that date the question of umpires will be decided.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

One of the reasons why golf is thought by many to be the greatest of games is shown by a letter which I have received from William W. Zimmerman, of Youngstown, O. It is as follows:

"In reading your current golf articles, I have observed that you sometimes answer inquiries able to you. If it is agreeshall be glad to have you answer the following inquiry:

Bobby Jones

"I am over 70 years of age and have played golf for many years. My wooden shots have been straight and short without cocking the wrists. By cocking the wrists I can, sometimes, get a longer shot, but I so frequently hook that I lose shots playing out of the rough and out of traps. I have experimented with all sorts of ideas to eliminate this hook, but without avail. Possibly you will be good enough to make a suggestion?"

I can think of nothing that I would rather do than to make a suggestion which would be of help to this real golfer.

As a man grows older his joints lose some of their flexibility. It would, therefore, be unreasonable to expect the wrists of Mr. Zimmerman to be as supple as those of a much younger player. He will, therefore, have to be satisfied with a shorter backswing than the young expert player would employ, but there is no reason why he should thus be condemned to a stiff-armed, stiff-wrist stroke which merely steers the ball down the fairway.

SHIFT BODY INTO STROKE

I know a player of approximately Mr. Zimmerman's age whose swing, though short and not so powerful as that of a younester, nevertheless exhibits all the qualities of crispness that could be desired. The most noticeable feature of his swing is the way in which he shifts his body into the stroke.

I have no doubt that Mr. Zimmerman's trouble has its source right here. When he allows his wrists to relax so that he can really feel the clubhead, he begins to notice the effect of an incorrect body movement which had been more or less offset by stiffening his wrist joints. By that I mean by failing to start a flow of weight forward towards the left foot as the initial movement of the downswing he has made it impossible for the club to hit the ball while traveling along the proper line. Possibly starting the downswing with his hands and wrists, he has caused the club to move over to the outside, whence it cuts across the line of flight from the outside and the face, having been closed, the troublesome hook has resulted.

FIRST MOVEMENT BY HIPS

My suggestion would be to employ as much wrist cock as possible without relaxing the grip of the fingers on the club to an extent which would permit the club to turn in the hands, but to make certain that the initial movement of the downswing was performed by the hips and midsection of the body rather than by the hands or arms. No matter how short the backswing may be, in order to swing through directly along the line of play the body must begin to move forward before the club starts to come down. As this is done both elbows should move downward close to the body, keeping the stroke inside the line of play.

It always helps to start out with a clear picture of what it is the movements of the swing are intended to accomplish. Indirectly, of course, the aim is to produce a straight, well-hit shot, but before that the direct purpose is to deliver with the clubhead a well-timed blow directed in a line exactly toward the objective.

I think if Mr. Zimmerman will remember this and will remember also to start his weight moving toward his left foot before he begins to bring the club down, he will have better luck.

A. M. A. Announces Coming Sport Events

The Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. has announced a list of events for the next several weeks and has awarded the Bellevue Athletic Club the annual A. M. A. junior track and field championships, to be staged late in May.

The schedule follows:

BOXING

April 14-17—American Legion tournament, Charleston, W. Va.; April 17, Eldred, Pa., show; April 18, Apollo, Pa., show; April 21, St. Mary's, Pa., show; April 24, Eldred, Pa., show; April 27, Pastorius A. C., McKees Rocks, show.

SWIMMING

WRESTLING

Junior A. M. A. wrestling championship meet, Sewickley Y. M. C. A., date to be set.

TENNIS DATE SET

NEW YORK, April 12.—(A.P.)—The annual tennis series between a combined Oxford-Cambridge team and one representing Harvard and Yale will be contested this year at the Newport (R. I.) Casino, July 13, 14 and 15, the United States Lawn Tennis Association today announced. The series, begun on an informal basis several years ago, has been played eight times with each team four times the winner.

ARKLE PLANS TO DEFEND NET TITLES

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

B. F. Arkle, blond Wheeling tennis ace, who last June carried off the Western Pennsylvania men's singles and, with Dr. John O'Loughlin, of the P. A. A., the men's doubles championships at Stanton Heights, is virtually certain to return to Pittsburgh two months hence in quest of another leg on the McCahill Cup, symbolic of West Penn man-to-man titular honors.

B. F. Arkle

The popular West Virginian shortly after his spectacular 1932 showing here invaded Greensburg for the Westmoreland County championships and there in an early round match with Irvin Goodman suffered so severe a sacroiliac strain that he was forced not only to default, but also to remain out of the sport for the remainder of the summer.

Following a long period of inactivity, during which he embraced the calling of a racquet scribe for a Wheeling newspaper, Arkle some time ago fared forth for the balmy clime of Cuba, where of late he has been permitted to engage in net practice. Within the last fortnight he has returned to Wheeling, however, and has pronounced himself fit for another crack at laurels of the tristate territory. A host of Pittsburghers who have enjoyed the fine performance of the genial Mountaineer youth in this city the past two seasons will be pleased to learn of the champion's recovery.

Meanwhile the uncertain weather of the current week has completely suspended the workouts of local college court squads. Pitt, whose warriors open against Grove City at the Stadium a week from Saturday, has yet to get out of doors, while the Dukes, even with asphalt surfaces at their disposal, have had little better fortune.

The Bluffite schedule has not thus far been released, but it is understood that the Siverd crew will get into action a day or so prior to the Panthers.

The P. A. A. intra-mural squash racquets final, wherein Dr. Dave O'Loughlin will encounter Bill Hutchins, has been set definitely for next Saturday afternoon. The contest looms as the Winged Head feature of the campaign and will undoubtedly draw a capacity gallery.

MILLIONS OF MEN gladly paid 10¢ YOURS TODAY FOR 5¢

The Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto—also known as "Philadelphia Hand-made"—became America's largest-selling 10-cent brand for one simple reason. More smokers liked it than any other 10-cent cigar.

Today—these smokers are getting the same complete satisfaction from their Bayuk "Phillies" at just one-half the cost. That's because the quality of tobacco used in this fine cigar—at 5 cents—has not been changed.

This means that this cigar today contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine Havana and Domestic long-filler—the same ripe tobacco—as when millions gladly paid 10 cents for it.

You men who are still looking for a really good 5-cent cigar—try Bayuk "Phillies". Your dealer has a box on the counter.

BAYUK'S GUARANTEE

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America. Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine Havana and Domestic long-filler—the same ripe tobacco.

STOCKS SLIDE IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP.)—Financial markets showed signs of exhaustion today, after their recent climb, and prices were inclined to recede in spots.

The share market turned dull on the recession, however. Mid-week business statistics were encouraging enough to make traders reluctant to sell, but buyers were inclined to place orders under the market in the hope of a technical reaction.

Reports from the steel industry were particularly gratifying, indicating that ingot production had jumped back close to the February peak level around 20 per cent of capacity. Of course, current levels are still highly unprofitable for the industry. Steel people used to say that it required operations at 40 per cent of capacity for profits, but T. N. Girdler, head of Republic Steel, told stockholders at their annual meeting that with recent economies, and present prices, the company could show a profit at 35 per cent. Even 25 per cent, he explained, would meet all ordinary charges of manufacture, and result in a gain in cash account, but of course would not provide depreciation charges.

Freight car loadings reports for last week, thus far, indicate some slackening in the rate of improvement from the low levels of early March. New York Central's loadings fell to 76,507 cars, from 79,510 in the previous week, but some carriers have reported small gains.

American Telephone's quarterly report was expected before the end of the week, and estimates of decreased earnings brought some selling into the stock. It was pointed out, however, that recent dividend cuts by some of the subsidiary companies will not be felt by the parent company until the second quarter. Petroleum statistics were regarded favorably, the weekly report of motor fuel stocks showing a reduction of 664,000 barrels.

Retail trade is being watched closely, and Easter merchandise is said to be moving in large volume. The Federal Reserve Board reported the value of March department stores sales at 27 per cent less than a year previously, but Easter last year fell on March 27, against April 16 this year, so this month should make a much more favorable comparison with 1932.

Curb Strikes Off American Austin

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP.)—The New York Curb Exchange today announced the removal from dealings of Allied Motor Industries, Inc., preferred and common stocks because of the company's failure to maintain facilities for the transfer and registration of securities.

The exchange also suspended dealings in the common stock of the American Austin Car Company, Inc., until further notice. This action, it was understood, was also based on the company's failure to provide transfer facilities.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

BUSINESS MAN FUNCTIONS AS DISTRIBUTOR

By LEWIS H. HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, April 12.—When a businessman pays the wages, interest and rent which are expenses of his business, and draws his profits, he is carrying out a process of "distribution."

In a sense, he is acting in part as society's paymaster, in that he registers the forces and conditions which are determining the "shares" of the total income which we receive. And the taxes he pays remind us that the government also contributes services and imposes restrictions, which affect our incomes.

Under our system, laborers, land owners, capital owners, enterprisers and government co-operate in production and turn out their joint product, from which we all derive our incomes. The "problem of distribution" lies in determining what share each of these groups shall receive. Or we may say, it is the problem of determining the value of the services contributed by each factor of production.

PERSONAL PHASE

To each individual, it seems the distribution is a personal matter—how much income can he get for himself? But each gets his individual income by some contribution to production, such as the efforts of laborers and enterprisers or the use of land and capital furnished by the owners. In reality, therefore, the fundamental nature of distribution is "functional;" that is, it is what the production factors do that counts, not who owns them.

All laborers have a common interst in "wages;" land owners in "rent;" capital owners in "interest," and enterprisers in "profits." And all persons fall into one or more of these groups.

We may think of all the productive activities of the nation as one, and as enabling the declaration of a national dividend each year, payable to the factors of production. In the last analysis, what is "distributed" is the stream of goods and services that is produced, consisting of food and clothes, hair cuts and medical service, and so on. This we may call "real distribution," and its measure is the amount of utility which consumers derive.

PRICES FACTOR

The immediate fact, however, is that the national dividend is distributed in money, and our real "shares" depend not only upon the quantity of goods and services available, but also upon prices.

That the total distribution in a society must depend upon the total production is clear.

Economics seeks in "distribution" the payment of rewards for the functions or services performed by labor, land, capital and enterprise, the income of society all being distributed as wages, rent, interest and profits. Just as a figure of speech, we may imagine society as a great co-operative enterprise, paying these shares.

Thus one readily sees why economics considers the price of any product as covering the rent, wages, interest and profits involved in producing it. This is what is meant by saying that prices tend to equal cost of production.

BUSINESS MAN'S THEORY

This, however, is very different from the businessman's way of accounting. He figures his dollar "sales," and from that item deducts his "expenses." These consist of wages, materials and supplies, and such expenses as "overhead" and "general and administrative" charges. The difference is his profit or loss.

The businessman thinks of the price of his product as being above his expense, thus allowing him a profit. The economist may regard profits as a necessary reward for the cost of enterprise, but the enterpriser himself cannot keep his books that way.

In fact, the accounts of a business give us a very inadequate record of distribution. In the first place, they can record payments only for hired labor, borrowed capital, and rented land. Any capital or land owned by the business involves no expenditure, and any charge made therefor is arbitrarily deducted from net earnings at an estimated figure. The same is true of "executive services" rendered by proprietors.

CAN'T ADD COSTS

In the second place, we cannot add the "expenses" of all businesses to get a total for the nation. The cost of materials for one business include the profits of another business from which they were bought, while, as just stated, the business cannot charge its own profit as cost. We could find many questionable items for depreciation and depletion.

So there is no actual record of the economist's "shares" in distribution. Many a person's income is partly wages and partly interest. The stockholders' dividends may be partly interest and partly profits. But the distribution process is none the less real, and the theory of distribution is one of the most important parts of the science of economics.

United Engineering Perfects New Shear

Development of a new high-speed precision flying shear for light gauge cold strip by the United Engineering and Foundry Company has been followed by a contract for the installation of the machine in one of the largest tin plate mills in the country. The shear is designed to handle a strip up to 36 inches wide from .006 to .025 inches thick in any selected length from 12 to 52 inches. The action is continuous and fully automatic.

LIVERPOOL, April 12—The market was due ¼d to ½d higher opened ¼d to ⅜d up, but at 1:20 p. m. was down ¼d. The market was unchanged to ¼d lower at the finish.

Moody Commodity Index at New 1933 Top

NEW YORK, April 12. — Moody's Investors Service commodity price index on April 11 stood at 90.2, a new high for the year, and compares with 88.6 on April 10.

REVIVE GRACE BONUS SUIT

TRENTON, N. J., April 12.—(AP.)—The question of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's bonus system for officials, which formed the basis of a court action two years ago, was revived yesterday in an action filed in Chancery Court to compel Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board; Eugene G. Grace, president, and other officers to repay allegedly excessive amounts they received between 1917 and 1930.

In the complaint, filed by Charles C. Stalter, of Paterson, N. J., counsel for the Standard Investment Company, holder of 150 shares of preferred stock, Grace is referred to as the "chief beneficiary of the wrongful administration of the system."

The complaint states Grace received a bonus of $1,626,753 in 1929, and a total of $5,745,307 in the period between 1925 and 1930, when the last bonuses were paid.

ASKS RECEIVER FOR BALDWIN

PHILADELPHIA, April 12. — (AP.)—A move for a federal equity receivership for the Baldwin Locomotive works, seeking to force it to pay $12,000,000 in notes which matured March 1, has been made by a minority note holder.

Patrick J. McNaney, of New York, who says that he holds $19,000 of the three-year 5½s per cent gold notes, has refused to accept the company's plan to exchange the notes for five-year mortgage bonds.

Bainbridge Colby, of New York, counsel for McNaney, said in the bill of particulars filed in United States District Court, that 75 per cent of the note holders had agreed to the exchange, but that McNaney and others contended the company has sufficient liquid assets to pay the notes and should do so.

Less Cottonseed Reported Crushed

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP.)—Cottonseed crushed in the eight-month period, August 1 to March 31, was reported today by the Census Bureau to have totaled 3,817,786 tons, compared with 4,596,504 tons for the same period last year.

Cotton Consumption Increase Estimated

NEW YORK, April 12.—New York Cotton Exchange Service estimates the amount of cotton consumed by domestic mills in March at 489,000 bales, compared with the Census Bureau figures of 442,000 bales consumed in February and 489,000 in March, 1932.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP.)—A dribble of profit-taking appeared in the curb market today and prices eased moderately, though trading was dull. Some speculative attention was paid to oil shares, but industrials continued to reflect realizing. Utilities also eased.

NEW YORK April 12.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 00 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Forbes

Thirty-Hour Week Should Be Pondered

By B. C. FORBES

IN ALL civilized countries the trend has been and is toward shorter working hours. Of what benefit to mankind are all our new inventions, all our labor-saving machinery and devices, all our chemical, scientific and other discoveries, all our vaunted managerial ingenuity, all our boasted efficiency, all our genius in achieving mass production if the net effects be not to lessen human toil and raise our standard of living?

Mr. Forbes

In America the rank and file of the people enjoy greater wealth of material comforts and work, on the whole, shorter hours than the people of any other civilized nation. The majority of Americans can afford more amusements, pleasure, travel and the like than any other people. Also, our total savings are not matched by any country.

Admittedly, our ability to produce has exceeded and excelled our present ability to purchase.

This suggests that the time has come when we can still further shorten our normal work-day or work-week.

But, granting all this, is it wise to enact legislation forbidding the employment of people more than five hours a day, 30 hours a week?

Is there not grave danger that any such arbitrary governmental decree would, instead of ameliorating conditions, precipitate many disturbing dislocations, including the bankruptcy of many concerns, particularly small concerns, struggling against heartbreaking odds to keep going, to keep on filling pay envelopes?

My observation is that the great majority of employers are already thoroughly imbued with the necessity of treating their work-people with all the consideration feasible under existing circumstances. There has developed, I sincerely believe, a closer, stronger, more sympathetic bond between employers and employed than we have ever known before. The response to the share-the-work appeal is an illustration.

Therefore, is it wise for Congress hastily to pass a law arbitrarily revolutionizing the permissible work-day or work-week? All sides, all angles, all arguments pro and con should first be heard and carefully pondered.

I think it can be taken for granted that, were employers compelled by law to restrict working weeks to 30 hours and to pay present weekly rates, a tragic number would have to give up, throwing many additional workers into idleness.

In any case, every phase of the possible effects of such legislation should be duly weighed before final action is taken.

HOW WIDESPREAD has become the public's lack of faith in the ability of financial and business men to right conditions is reflected by the plethora of letters sent this column. Almost every suggestion, every recommendation, every plan, every program, every panacea embodies action by the government. Manifestly, the notion is popular that there is absolutely no limit to the government's credit, to the government's capacity for spending.

FROM PRIVATE sources come reports that conditions in Cuba are extremely alarming.

ONE READER, Herbert S. Irving, an ardent angler, sends this sage observation:

"High water and low water both are bad for good fishing; and that goes for business, the security market, the commodity exchanges, or what-have-you."

THE HOPE of industry lies in the fact that Father Time has not gone on strike, but keeps on relentlessly wearing things out.

TO GRANT President Roosevelt authority to lower tariffs 10 per cent would be one thing. To lower all tariffs 10 per cent would be something very different and most unwise. The time has come when, in dealing with other nations, this country should insist upon reciprocity for favors, leniency, concessions.

SOME OF those who have had to disgorge hoarded gold have, I understand, been buying high-grade bonds and stocks.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, April 12. — The bond market shifted about in a rather nervous manner today with a number of the recently firm leaders inclined to shade their prices fractionally to a point or more. Offerings of United States government securities were not taken so easily as in the past week or so, and there were several declines of 1-32 to around 11-32 of a point in this group. German bonds turned reactionary and lost some of their recoveries of the past two days. Reich 5½s and 7s were off a point or more. Some of the Japanese, Australians and Belgians were a trifle heavy. The Italians and Argentines steadied.

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column): United States bonds in dollar and thirty-seconds of dollars.

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

A man's voice answered her.

"Hello. Is this Mr. Dean?" she asked.

"No. This is Al Green," said the voice. "Won't I do?" It was a nice voice with an undercurrent of cheerfulness in it.

"I wanted to talk to Mr. Dean," said Sharlie primly.

"Well, then, you'd better call again at six o'clock," the voice answered her. "He never gets home till six—and sometimes he doesn't get home till midnight. But try again at six, will you, baby?"

She bought a five-cent magazine and a chocolate sundae and busied herself with them until five after six. Then she called the Vancouver number once more.

It was the Joyland man who answered her this time. She recognized his voice the moment he spoke to her.

"This is the girl named Geraldine whom you danced with at Joyland a week ago Saturday night," said Sharlie. "Do you remember me?"

"Do I remember you? How could I forget you?" he asked her. "I've been waiting for you to call up every night for 10 nights. Where are you and when am I going to see you?"

"I'm in the White Way drugstore on Fifth street near Olive," said Sharlie. In the dimness of the telephone booth her eyes had begun to dance and her cheeks to redden with excitement. "I was going to ask you if you didn't want to take a lonesome woman somewhere tonight."

FICTITIOUS NAME

"You wait right there for 15 minutes, baby," he replied. "Just long enough for your uncle to put on a clean collar and fall into his car ... Hey, listen, there's a big bum here named Al Green. He wants to know if you can get another girl, and if he can come along."

"Tell him to bring along a girl of his own," said Sharlie. "My girl friend is engaged to be married—and her stepping days are over."

"There were little bottles of "Try Me" perfume in a case on the counter. They were only a quarter apiece. She bought one of them and went into the telephone booth to put some on her hair and under her chin.

At twenty minutes after six a shiny little roadster with a rumble seat drove up before the White Way drug store and came to a sudden stop.

There were two men in it. The blond man named Cadwell Dean, and a stocky red-headed fellow with a tiny red mustache and a pair of small, twinkling blue eyes.

Dean jumped out of the car and held the door open for Sharlie. "I guess we can all ride in the front seat until we pick up another girl," he said, getting in after her. "I'd like to introduce you to Mr. Green, but I've forgotten your name, Geraldine."

Sharlie blinked her eyes, thinking hard. "It's Barnum," she said. "Sharlie Barnum."

INTRODUCED TO GIRL

"Later on," she decided, "I'll tell these people my own name. Maybe I ought to do it now."

She was still debating with herself when the car stopped in front of a tall brick building on Fifth street near Porcher place.

Looking up Sharlie saw that there were curtains in the windows of the upper stories, and here and there a lamp glowing in the twilight.

"I'll run up and get Marjorie," Al Green said and got out of the roadster.

But before he reached the entrance to the building a girl came out of it. A tall, smiling girl dressed in the kind of black that is more striking than any color. A black satin dress that showed every curve of her young body as nothing else could have revealed them, the thinnest of black chiffon stockings and black sandals.

Her eyes were deep blue and her mouth was bright scarlet; she wore no rouge and her face was so thickly powdered that it looked as if it had been sculptured out of white marble.

"She looks terrible expensive to be coming out of that building," thought Sharlie, watching her come across the sidewalk.

"Miss Barnum, Miss Marjorie Milliken," said Al Green, introducing them.

The girl came up to the side of the car and shook hands, first with Sharlie and then with Caldwell Dean.

"Hello, Caddy," she said in a low husky voice. She smelled of cigarets and gardenia perfume. "What are we all going to do? I passed up a date with a million dollars to come out with you tonight. So let's make it a real evening."

Sharlie knew that Miss Milliken's idea of a "real" evening would not be Joyland and its simple pleasures.

"How about White's place?" asked Miss Milliken, opening her mesh bag. "By the way, I have a bottle of something good upstairs. You run up and get it, Al."

"Did you decide on White's Caddy?" he asked, helping Miss Milliken into the rumble seat and climbing in beside her.

"Yes, we're going to White's," Miss Milliken answered. "If you two are broke—and I suppose you are—I can let you take some money."

The car started.

"I'm not dressed well enough to go to White's," said Sharlie in a low tone.

She and Eddie had often driven past White's big roadhouse on the River Road. They had always slowed up to look over the white brick fence at the Japanese lanterns that glowed with light in the windows and among the dark trees on the courtyard. But they never had had the courage to drive in ... White's was expensive.

POLICEMAN INTERRUPTS

"What do you think of Marjorie? Isn't she a wow?" Dean asked next.

"She's beautiful," said Sharlie.

"Lot of fun, too," the man went on. "Everybody crazy about her. She has a couple of dozen old boys hanging around her flat all the time, just breaking their necks to be nice to her—and all because she's such good company. Wait 'til you hear that girl do her imitation of Sophie Tucker. Boy, she can sing!"

When the car reached the country the pair in the back seat began to sing. "I'm Still Caring," in the lazy crooning way that Mr. Rudy Vallee has made so popular everywhere.

Looking back over her shoulder Sharlie saw that their cheeks were close together, and that both of them had lighted cigarets in their hands.

"We each had three drinks, Miss Barnum," Al Green said to her, stopping in the middle of his song. "How about you and Caddy joining us in the next one ... How about it, Caddy?"

Caddy stopped the car in the darkness at the side of the road. Al passed him the bottle and he raised it to his lips.

But before he had time to take a drink, a motorcycle drove up beside them, seeming to come from nowhere, and a man peered into the car.

"What's going on here?" he asked. "You got something to drink there? What's that in your hand?" As he spoke he reached out for the bottle that gleamed in Caddy's hand.

Synopsis

Pretty Sharlie Dunn marries Eddie Wallis, youthful ruffian, following a night spent in Eddie's car when it ran out of gas. The same day Eddie is killed by an automobile. Sharlie's mother, Dodie, and Maud Hanaberry her friend, have gay parties while their husbands are away. Sharlie is sent to her grandmother's. One night, returning unexpectedly, Sharlie observes Dodie and Maud entertaining two men. Later, Dodie informs Sharlie she is going to leave her husband. That afternoon, Mr. Dunn and Mr. Hanaberry return and take their wives and "friends" by surprise.

CHARTIST'S DEMONSTRATION (World's History)

"Chartism" was a radical social movement in England (1838-1848). It was expressed in the "People's Charter" demanding universal suffrage, equal electoral districts, vote by ballot, annual, paid Parliament and no qualifications but election for members. After great demonstrations and bloody riots, legislative reforms and expanding trade stilled this social tumult.

THE MAKING OF VITREOUS CHINA AND PORCELAIN

The ware drawn from the glost kiln is the vitreous china. Further operations: Elimination of the imperfect pieces, grinding true the back and base on a large horizontal steel wheel (left) with sand and water, testing under water the plumbing ware and crating for shipment. Pieces of great bulk cannot be made from vitreous china on account of considerable shrinkage. The raw clay is therefore mixed with "grog" (a clay which already has been fired once). This mixture is called porcelain, which, after painting over with white clay and glaze, is fired but once. Center left: Unfired china clay for vitreous ware. Center right: Unfired porcelain clay. Right: Porcelain bathtub is wheeled into the kiln for firing. (Science.)

Take It Gently, Brothers

As a civilian observer watching the collapsible antics of faddists we wish to warn the everpresent public against stretching rubber bands and galluses too far.

Fun is fun. But you can't ride two ways on a one-way ticket. If the stars and the portents are correct we have beer at our beck and two steins at our nod.

We warn the cheerful winners against excesses. It is all right to crow when the egg is hatched and the stein is on your chin.

But, take a leaf from the reformer's album. He tried to make us too good. Don't make yourself too bad.

The Eighteenth Amendment was a noble chunk of haywired philanthropy that was designed to make angel wings grow where none grew before. It flopped because the average citizen is normal and has all the ills the flesh is taxed for.

He wanted his beer. And he wanted it cold. He wanted to laugh again in the foam and revel in the amber flood. But we fear he will carry his triumph into oversizes and balloon dimensions.

We caution the boys to take victory easily and gracefully. Don't forget the passengers can overturn the craft by rushing to either side of the boat.

So graduate your actions and your malt gyrations. Be gentlemanly in your fermented excesses. Don't let the defeated reformer and the professional uplifter say that a man can't take a glass of nutritious beer without being imbued with the idea that he can whip the amalgamated police forces of New York, Jersey City and San Francisco.

Remember, me lads, you are on your good behavior. No rough stuff. Bow to strangers, speak courteously to friends and limit yourself to 15 minutes at the free lunch counter.

We're on parade now and the eyes of the world are upon us. Let's show the universe that an American gentleman is still a gentleman even with sawdust in his hair and a bouncer on his chest.

After all, prohibition was a noble experiment. And let's see if we cannot keep repeal from the same kind of knighthood.

Let Us Be Grateful That Something Has Been Saved From the Chaos at Harrisburg

There seems little likelihood that the public utility legislation so sorely needed by Pennsylvania will be enacted.

The beer bills are in a snarl.

But there is one bright spot in the dark picture. Progress has been made—greater progress than ever before—towards freeing Pennsylvania from the shackles of the Blue Law of 1794, with its indefensible ban on innocent amusements.

The Legislature has passed and sent to Gov. Gifford Pinchot a bill which authorizes Sunday baseball and football in municipalities which vote, in a referendum to be held November 7, in favor of them.

It is woefully inadequate of course. We ought to have Sunday ball games and, movies too, as a matter of course.

But let us be grateful even for a small favor.

Gov. Pinchot's attitude can only be guessed. It is predicted he will approve the bill. Certainly he will be going counter to the wishes of most Pennsylvanians, as indicated in straw votes, if he fails to do so.

A Much Needed Bridge

The Proposed High-Level Span at Homestead Would Facilitate Travel and Promote Safety.

Years have been consumed in discussing the proposal that a high-level bridge be constructed across the Monongahela River at Homestead.

The project was approved by the County Commissioners when Joseph G. Armstrong was chairman. Test borings for the piers were made, and a design for the bridge decided upon. Something was done to get waivers of damages from persons whose property would be affected by the bridge approaches.

Washington has acted favorably on the request for authority to make it a toll bridge, and Harrisburg only a few days ago granted permission to borrow money for self-liquidating projects like this from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

It is to be hoped there will be no more delay, for the proposed bridge is sorely needed, not only as one of the public works that will help to relieve unemployment but also to promote safety and facilitate travel.

The Monongahela must be crossed at Homestead in going from any one of half a dozen thickly settled communities on one side of the river to any of half a dozen populous boroughs on the other side.

The only present facilities for crossing make it necessary to cross six tracks of heavily traveled main line railroads at grade and to use Brown's Bridge, built in 1895, with only two lanes of traffic, and altogether unsuited for the 13,000 automobiles and trucks and 407 heavy modern street cars now forced to use it daily.

There have been innumerable serious accidents at the railroad grade crossings. Last July three lives were lost in a collision between a street car and automobile on Brown's Bridge.

The danger and inconvenience would be eliminated by the proposed high-level bridge.

A Wise Decision

The Democratic Leaders of the Senate Have Done Well in Not Acting on the League Court.

Lest it jeopardize the Roosevelt legislative program for the relief of our national emergency, the Democratic leaders of the Senate have finally decided not to try to bring the League Court protocols out of committee during the present session of Congress.

From every American point of view, this is a wise decision. It will commend itself to the common sense of the American people.

They accepted without question the assurance of the President that the Congress had been called in extra session to adopt a specific "program of action."

They were given further to understand that the legislation included in this program would have to do with "putting our national house in order and making income balance outgo."

These promises in the President's inaugural strongly appealed to the common sense of the American people and mobilized sentiment in support of the Roosevelt leadership and the Roosevelt program.

By rejecting the ill-timed and ill-advised proposal to take up the League Court protocols at this emergency session of Congress, the Democratic leaders of the Senate are only following the practical policy advocated by Mr. Roosevelt of "putting first things first."

Let us hope that we have heard the last of the League Court protocols for the year 1933.

And this hope will be realized if the Democratic leadership of the Senate does not succumb as easily as Senator Robinson of Arkansas did in 1930 to what George Washington called "the insidious wiles of foreign influence."

Unfortunately for the Senate and the country, Mr. Robinson went to the London Naval Conference of 1930 an American and came back a British cheer leader.

Even more unfortunately this seems to be a fatal defect in the bourgeois American. He does not seem able to retain his Americanism or his patriotism under the disintegrating effect of foreign flattery.

Let a bourgeois American receive an invitation to dinner at the home of Lord What-You-May-Call-Him or to a reception of Lady Thingamabob and the best interests of the American people are apt to be sacrificed to the inane ambitions of the social climber.

Those public officials whose Americanism is a little weak and whose social position is weaker should not be subjected to the demoralizing effect of foreign flattery.

It would be better for the Senate and the country if Senator Robinson had stayed at home in 1930 and remained an American.

With Great Britain's signature, 25 nations have adhered to the Geneva Anti-Narcotic Treaty, which is now the prevailing international law of the civilized world.

This great world reform was brought to pass through the efforts of the United States. Consequently, the United States has assumed a moral obligation to the rest of the world, in larger measure than any other country.

In order to carry out this obligation, as well as to curb the illicit narcotic traffic within our own borders, the nation must have the Uniform State Narcotic Law, operative in every State.

Nevada has led the way in enacting the new narcotic code.

In other states, Legislatures are in session. Let them, as rapidly as possible, enact the Uniform State Narcotic Code and keep faith with their sister states and with the nations of the world.

Guarantee Is Essential

Security Sellers Should Be Held Responsible for Statements Made to Purchasers

By JULIUS G. BERENS,
Financial Editor, New York American

THE MOST essential reform in security-selling would be to LEGALLY COMMIT every underwriting or offering house to the ABSOLUTE ACCURACY of every statement concerning the security made to a purchaser.

No more should there be a legal loophole in such statements (in prospectuses) as:

"Information herein contained has been obtained from sources believed to be reliable, BUT WHICH WE DO NOT GUARANTEE."

Why shouldn't bankers or promoters of securities GUARANTEE every statement made in connection with an offering?

The investor cannot check on all statements made to him.

It is up to the offering house to confirm statements made to them by the enterprise whose securities are being sold. In this capacity, the investment banker must be required BY LAW to ascertain the accuracy of balance sheets, income accounts, plants, etc.

SUCH AN audit and examination, incidentally, should be conducted by INDEPENDENT auditors, who likewise should be held responsible for statements which they state as accurate.

The very heart of security selling reform exists in the seemingly innocuous statement "information . . . believed to be accurate . . . but which is NOT guaranteed." This statement has never been absent from prospectuses heretofore issued to the public.

So-called investment banking heretofore has been merely a business of peddling securities.

Now is the time to make it a genuinely banking business, engaged in only by firms or individuals or corporations willing AND ABLE to assume the legal obligation entailed in a GUARANTEE of every statement made to the purchaser.

Unless the seller of securities is legally bound to stand behind every statement made to a purchaser, then investment banking reform is doomed to failure.

There should be a PENALTY for irresponsible security sales.

Underwriters and distributors of securities should be made FINANCIALLY LIABLE for any losses which investors may suffer, when the loss is in any way due to misstatements or inaccuracies in the prospectuses, or to any failure fully to reveal essential information regarding the securities.

Another vital necessity in any such program will be advanced in the next article of this series.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 12.—A glittery barber shop near the Strand Theater is the hopper for many of the street's choicest wise-cracks. Its patronage is largely among song writers, gag men for vaudeville revues and movies as well as sundry minds sharpened by the city's pavements.

Many of tomorrow's hilarities are incubated there. Customers include Irving Caesar, Lew Pollack, Ballard Macdonald, Jack Benny, Lou Holtz, Jack Osterman and others of the crack adlibbers. The solemn-faced head barber, Bill, is top clown with a fellow barber, Salvador, as a stooge.

The customary placidity of the average barber shop may in sudden mirthquake erupt in a "strolling through the park" formation and an "off to Buffalo" out the door without paying the cashier. Or some wag may sit on a manicure girl's knee to phone his wife he will be late because of a "tough day at the office."

An innocent stranger, wandering in, is often horrified by witnessing a mock stabbing affray at his chair-side. Calls over dead phones will be put in for Hollywood stars while eyes pop at imaginary conversations. It is all incredibly mad but the exquisite fooling is about the biggest laugh on Broadway.

The Bronx, of all boroughs, is mellow with the simplicity of an older period. No other section gives forth such a feeling of laundered permanence. There is the suggestion of neighborliness and incurable passion for old-fashioned beat-the-carpet-in-the-back-yard housekeeping. Oddly enough, about the only writer to use the Bronx as a locale for fiction was young Vina Delmar.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Are you a Married Man or a Married Woman?

Wedded long enough to have taken part in the Big Whoopee of '29?

And is your matrimony now suffering from High Blood Pressure? Dizzy spells? Spots before the eyes? Ringing in your ears? Yes—?

THEN DON'T READ THE FOLLOWING COMMUNICATION!

For I warn you—

THIS LETTER IS GUARANTEED TO MAKE COOING DOVES BITE HOLES IN ARMOR PLATE.

AND IF THERE'S A MARRIED COUPLE WHO CAN DISCUSS IT WITHOUT STAGING A MASSACRE, THEY BELONG IN A MUSEUM!

What's it about

And people who have to move out of swanky duplex apartments into shabby walk-up flats . . .n' hock their diamond earrings . . . n' sell their mink coats to raise the price of eats.

So then what?

So then how do they act after they get that way? Particularly—how do Wives act?

For years and years we've been hearing about how brave and loyal wives are under adverse circumstances. Well, we now have the adversiest circumstances anyone could crave. And are the Ladies being the Ministering Angels, we've been led to expect?

"NO, THEY'RE NOT!" yells Mr. James Bennett—and proceeds to provide plenty of peevish proof.

At which point, if you're a husband, you'll probably give a big grin, snuggle down and read each paragraph with ecstacy. But if you're a wife—½ ½ ½???% %)('  Fill in the blank for yourself, sister.

And now—Mr. Bennett speaking—

Dear Miss Robinson:

I wonder if a mere man can say a few words about this Depression, and the way some wives are making it practically unbearable for their husbands?

I know, of course, that SOME women are meeting it like good soldiers in a pinch . . . BUT SOME—A WHOLE LOT OF THEM IN FACT—ARE NOT. Mine is one of these latter kind.

In 1929, we were sitting pretty. I had built up a good business. I had worked hard to give my wife all the comforts I could possibly get for her. We moved in a pretty nice set . . . or so I thought them. They were clever, alert, amusing people. They all had about the same amount of money we had. They could afford nice homes or apartments. They had good clothes, and some good jewelry.

Well, when the crash came, a good many of us were practically wiped out. I wasn't. I hadn't gone in for stock gambling to any great extent and I was lucky enough to get out with most of my skin. But the PARTY was over, and big profits were no more.

It wasn't long before we, as well as the rest of the gang, had to retrench. We had to move out of our pretty apartment in a fine big building, and into a much cheaper place . . . TO THE TUNE OF A CONSTANT STREAM OF COMPLAINTS FROM MY WIFE.

To hear her go on, you would have thought that the depression was all the fault of myself, and the other husbands we knew. She criticized constantly. She whined because people didn't patronize my store as they had been doing. She accused me of being a poor business man. She railed and scolded because she couldn't spend money as she had been doing. She got positively waspish. AND THERE NEVER WAS A WORD OF SYMPATHY FOR MY WORRIES OR A WORD OF ENCOURAGEMENT.

Some of the other wives were even worse. Two or three of the men we knew were "caught short" in the stock market, and lost practically everything they had. Others lost their shirts when companies they were in went to the wall. AND THE WOMEN SNARLED AND CALLED THEM FOOLS AND WORSE, BECAUSE OF IT. There was just ONE of them who seemed to sense something of the terrible discouragement her husband was going through, and gave him a few words of cheer.

And mind you, these were folks who were fond of thinking of themselves as Our Best People. The men had worked their heads off, to give their women folks the best they could . . . AND WHEN THEY MET DISASTER, WHAT THANKS . . . WHAT UNDERSTANDING OR ENCOURAGEMENT DID THEY GET TO HELP THEM IN THEIR ZERO HOUR? None!

I will say that among the POOR folks I know, some of whom are now actually destitute, I've seen far more courage and devotion than in our immediate crowd. But even there, I've seen a good deal of this notion of snarling at husbands for something that no one could help.

FRANKLY, I THINK A LOT OF AMERICAN WIVES ARE FALLING DOWN ON THEIR JOB.

I finally got mad and told my own wife so. She doesn't make sarcastic remarks now, like she did . . . BUT SHE GOES AROUND LOOKING LIKE AN ABUSED MARTYR, and it is pretty plain that she thinks I am a Big Brute for talking to her the way I did. And after all the hard work I did to TRY to give her the best!

What do you think? Are women a lot less heroic and sweet than they've set themselves up to be, or what? Personally, I think most of them are bum sports—They could dish it out—and how!—when things were going good—but they can't take it now that times are tough.

JAMES BENNETT.

So there you are. And now what's YOUR opinion?

ARE AMERICAN WIVES FALLING DOWN ON THEIR JOBS?

IS THE FAMOUS AMERICAN HUSBAND BEING THE STURDY OAK HE PROMISED HE'D BE . . . OR JUST A WEEPING WILLOW?

'CHISELERS'

By Winifred Black

"Chiselers"—the world is full of them.

Have you noticed how they are multiplying here, there and everywhere?

People with no visible means of support.

People who "drop in" at meal times and hint that they would love to stay all night in a real home.

Men who went to college with your second cousin James, and women who were in the same class with your third cousin Mary.

Women who feel that they know you intimately because they have been going to the same dressmaker—the one, you know, with the knack for simple house dresses—oh, for years and years they've known her, so of course they know you and you must be crazy to know them.

People who "make a mistake" and come to the house when there's a party—so embarrassed, don't you know, wouldn't have come for worlds, and there they are, though, and there they stay—till the party is over, and your friends ring you up the next day and ask who on earth they are and tell you that the interesting strangers are coming to a party at your friend's house next Thursday and will you please tell your friend their real names so they can be properly introduced, don't you know.

The "chiseler" goes in for the retail sort of thing, a stray meal, a chance introduction, the sound of a name overheard at a concert, or in a restaurant—what a nuisance they are—the "chiselers."

I'm going to start an "Anti-Chiselers League" — don't you want to join?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Constantly complaining of your luck, deprecating the ability of your opponents because they have better cards, detracts from the social pleasure.

Becoming angry and throwing your cards on the table in a listless, indifferent style, you only disgust your partner and annoy those playing against you.

You often have had hands so strong that your opponents had little chance of winning from you, but you never think of your lucky breaks when a poor one comes in the deal.

When you are playing in social session do you often alude to the fact that you care only for "duplicate," in which you have fair success.

As a matter of fact it may be that your opponents are making much more out of their hands than you would gain if you played them.
